

Lawrence Honor Awards Made at Class Day Event

Fond du Lac Girl, Merrill Man Win Spade And Spoon
NAME APPLETON BOY
Samuel Leets Receives DeGoy Ellis Junior Athletic Prize

Combining the solemnity of the awarding of well-earned trophies and the traditional planting and watering of the ivy with a lighter mood occasioned by humorous speeches, the reading of the class prophecy and a program of popular music, Lawrence college senior class day exercises were held this morning in Lawrence Memorial chapel.

The planting and watering of the ivy, by Miss Jane Cornell, Appleton, and Frederick Leech, Milwaukee, last year's winners of the junior spade and spoon, climaxed the morning's ceremonies. This ceremony symbolizes the bonds of loyalty and friendship of the senior class to its alma mater, and the spade is used to turn the soil while the large wooden spoon is used in watering the plant.

Following the ivy planting, Miss Cornell turned over the junior spade to Miss Marion Humkeker, Fond du Lac, this year's winner of the honor, and Mr. Leech presented the spoon to Donald MacDonald, Merrill. These awards are made each year to the juniors who are judged the most outstanding of their class in every way.

Present Honors
Miss Humkeker was chosen one of the college beauties this year, is president of Lawrence Women's association and of her sorority, Kappa Alpha Theta, was a student counselor at Sage hall and a member of the executive committee of the student body as well as Women's Athletic association board. Mr. MacDonald, next year's All-College club president, was a member of the varsity football team for two years, is active in student government affairs and is president of his fraternity, Beta Theta Pi.

Old Tradition
Presentation of the spoon is a tradition dating back to 1875 when it was originally presented to the homeliest man in the junior class. The spade has been given annually since 1900.

Award Cup
The Spector cup awarded annually by Morris Spector of Appleton, to the senior student who by a vote of both students and faculty is judged the most outstanding of his class was given to Frederick Leech, Milwaukee. Mr. Leech was manager of athletic publicity and business manager of the athletic association this year in addition to having been active in student life throughout his college career. Selection is made on the basis of physical, mental and moral qualities which go to make up a well-rounded student.

The special awards were made by President Thomas N. Barrows. Irving Sloan, Evanston, Ill., acted as master of ceremonies for class day exercises which opened to the strains of a collegiate medley played by Harold Menning's orchestra seated on the stage of the chapel. A novel arrangement of the Lawrence Victory song brought the medley to a conclusion, and the orchestra also provided musical interludes between the various sections of the program. Mr. Sloan struck the keynote of humor when he "inadvertently" started off with the wrong speech, rising to great heights in his rosy picture of what the future holds for this year's graduates. After a brief interruption, he returned with the right speech, which proved to be a resume of the career of the class of 1937 from its freshman days to the present, and the class prophecy, supposedly being read on the occasion of the tenth

London Reveals 4-Power Accord

Agreement Guarantees Safety for Foreign Warships in Neutral Patrol

London — (U) — Great Britain announced officially tonight the conclusion of a four-power agreement guaranteeing the safety of foreign warships participating in the neutral patrol off Spain and Italy and the return of Germany and Italy to the European non-intervention fold.

All four powers whose warships form the international fleet—Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany—agreed not to take retaliatory action before consulting among themselves in the event any of their vessels are attacked.

Details of the agreement were withheld for the moment. It is designed to end the dangerous situation caused by the withdrawal from the neutral patrol of Italian and German warships, following bomb attacks on those ships by Spanish government planes. Germany also retaliated to an attack on her pocket battleship, the Deutschland, by shelling Almeria, Spanish government port.

The accord, reached by the British, French, Germans and Italians, will be submitted to both the Spanish government and the insurgent forces for their approval. Thereafter, the full non-intervention committee will discuss it. Views of the Russians, who objected to the four-power conversations, will then be entertained.

A majority vote of the 27-member non-intervention committee might nullify the four-power arrangement, but British sources said they deemed this unlikely.

Use Artillery In Attack Upon Bilbao Forces

Insurgent Land and Air Bombardment Sets Dwellings Afire

FRANCO IS OPTIMISTIC Says 'Final Victory May be Long Before People Expect It'

By the Associated Press
An insurgent land and air bombardment set houses on Bilbao's waterfront afire today and cracked the outer ring of the Basque capital's last triple defense.

Insurgent troops of General Fidelio Davila streamed over the Basque trenches. A squadron of 39 insurgents bombers roared over suburban Amurrio and Galdacano, dropping bombs for 12 hours.

Bilbao, for the first time in its nine weeks of siege, was under artillery fire.

General Francisco Franco, insurgent dictator, promised his "final victory may be long before the people expect it." Stationed at Burgos, 70 miles southwest of the Bilbao front, Franco told the Associated Press he would be willing to withdraw all foreigners from his ranks if the government authorities would do likewise.

On the battlefield of the northern area, insurgents estimated their drive on Bilbao in the last 24 hours had cost the Basques 200 lives.

Government Claim
At the same time the government announced it had taken a similar number of insurgent lives in a drive on Gultorio on the Oviedo front in northwestern Spain.

Elsewhere in Spain and in Europe men who did not fight honored those who did.

In Rome, the fascist government held out the names of 175 Italians who died in "the war against bolshevism and for fascist civilization on the Madrid front March 8-18."

Valencia, scene of the present central government of Spain, turned momentarily from her dead to honor General Mija, "saviour of Madrid." It awarded him the highest military honor within its power—the laureate plaque.

Germany also had a word about the conflict. The official news agency, Deutsches Nachrichtenbüro, announced Germany will reply to "the slightest provocation" in Spanish waters "with a lightning-like counter-stroke."

In London, however, things looked brighter.

Boy Stops Train Till He Can Get Cows From Track

Brownstown, Wis. — (U) — Wayne Segner, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Segner, farmers, stood in the middle of a railroad right of way and waved a thundering freight train to a halt. The engineer popped his head out and asked:

"What's the matter, son?"

"You can't drive that thing any farther till I get my daddy's cows off the track," asserted Wayne. Then he ran to his father who was plowing in a nearby field and secured assistance in driving two Jersey cows from the tracks.

Quiz Woman in Move to Solve Mystery Case

State Police and Federal Agents Conducting Own Investigations

CONTACT REPORTED Ransom Rumored Paid in Effort to Win Release Of Mrs. Parsons

Stony Brook, N. Y. — (U) — A Suffolk county, Long Island official disclosed today that genuine fear is felt for the safety of Mrs. Alice McDonnell Parsons, 38-year-old society woman who vanished from her Long Meadows farm three days ago. Assistant District Attorney Lindsay R. Henry, the official, said no search for Mrs. Parsons has started yet out of deference for the expressed wishes of her husband, William G. Parsons, gentleman poultry farmer, to give the supposed abductors of his wife a chance to establish contact with him.

Stony Brook, N. Y. — (U) — Investigators prodded a plump, black-haired Russian woman with patient questioning today on her story of life at Long Meadows farm, from which Mrs. Alice McDonnell Parsons vanished without a trace save a crude note demanding $25,000 ransom.

State police, pursuing their own investigation while federal agents moved secretly, concentrated on questioning the mysterious Mrs. Anna Kuprianoff, housekeeper in the Parsons household.

It was Mrs. Kuprianoff who told of seeing the 38-year-old heiress get into an automobile with a middle-aged man and woman Wednesday morning and drive away on a trip from which she had not returned.

Across from Mrs. Kuprianoff in the Bay Shore Police station sat Alex Kuprianoff, 43-year-old match factory worker, who came from Long Island city yesterday to claim he was her former husband.

Assistant District Attorney Joseph S. Arata of Suffolk county emerged from the conference early this morning to say that Mrs. Kuprianoff admitted the relationship, though she had not mentioned Kuprianoff in her earlier story of two former marriages.

Paternity Question
Arata said the woman also identified Kuprianoff as the father of her 11-year-old son, Roy, who lived with her on the Parsons' landscaped poultry farm. The match worker, Arata said, dismissed the statement as "impossible." She previously had said Roy was the child of her first husband, who died in an automobile accident.

While reports spread that the heiress would be released soon in New York city, that a contact had been made with the kidnappers, and that the ransom had been paid, no signs of activity were apparent at the Stony Brook home.

The missing woman's husband, William H. Parsons, haggard and worn, went through the motions of caring for his squab farm, refusing all comment after he had twice appealed for freedom from police suspicion in attempts to contact his wife's supposed abductors.

He refused to discuss reports that a second note had been received, supplementing the one found under the cushions of his car, 13 hours after Mrs. Parsons disappeared. That message bluntly demanded $25,000 "or you will never speak to Alice again."

Federal agents, on the surface at least, were remaining aloof, pending the result of family efforts to contact the kidnappers.

Troops Sent to Monroe During Mass Meeting; Strike in New Region

More Than 75,000 Workers are Affected by Walkout

CONFAB RECESSED Columbus Peace Discussions to be Resumed Tuesday

Monroe, Mich. — (U) — National guardsmen were ordered into this sector of the strike-beset Great Lakes area today and a vast walkout affecting more than 75,000 men extended to new territory with a union official expressing the "hope it spreads fast" into the plants of Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second largest producer.

The meeting was called by Homer Martin, United Automobile Workers leader, to protest against the breaking of a picket line to allow resumption of operations at a steel mill controlled by Republic steel corp.

Martin said the meeting would go on as scheduled.

In Johnstown, Pa., where part of the workers in Bethlehem Steel's Cambria plant went on strike at midnight, David Watkins, sub-regional director of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, said there was "every possibility" the strike would extend into the ranks of others of Bethlehem's 80,000 workers.

Conflicting Claims
Watkins said he was "sure there are at least 10,000 men out" at the Cambria plant, but Bethlehem officials said the mill was operating according to schedule. The plant employs approximately 15,000.

An estimated 73,000 men had been idle before calling of the Cambria strike.

These developments came a few hours after a peace conference called by Governor Martin L. Davey had recessed at Columbus, Ohio, until next Tuesday, with no immediate results apparent.

Governor Davey said of the conference "it was very interesting to see them smiling as they shook hands and said 'good night.'" Asked if he felt progress had been made toward settling the seven-state strike, the governor said "we hope so."

After Davey urged the companies to sign a S. W. O. C. contract recognizing the union as collective bargaining agent for its own members only—the point at issue throughout the two and one half week-old strike—company representatives said they had not changed their intention against signing.

Contract Is Issue
The officials, J. C. Argetsinger of Slacks, and T. A. J. A. Voss of Republic, expressed the hope Governor Davey would find a way to settle the conflict without necessity of signing a contract. "The governor has been very patient and gave us all the time we wanted to present our side," Voss commented.

Union representatives — Philip Murray, national S. W. O. C. chairman, and John Owens, Ohio C. I. O. director—insisted, meanwhile, on a contract. "We are not going to walk out unless we are willing to wait for days," a union spokesman said.

The protest of the S. W. O. C. was recognized in a contract for its members only was virtually identical to the agreement signed with the S. W. O. C. several months ago by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., which is the nation's largest producer.

The walkout at Bethlehem's vast Johnstown, Pa., unit originally was threatened in sympathy with a strike of two railroad brotherhoods, but Davey said the S. W. O. C. sub-regional director, told a mass meeting of unionists as they voted last night: "Our strike is more than a sympathy strike. We have specific demands of our own to make. We want signed contracts with the Bethlehem governing wages hours."

50 YEARS A PRIEST

Greetings from Pope Pius XI and congratulations from President Roosevelt to Bishop Alexander J. McGavick (above) were read yesterday at LaCrosse in honor of Bishop McGavick's fiftieth anniversary as a priest. George Cardinal Mundelein and Governor LaFollette were among the speakers.

Bishop McGavick Honored on His 50th Anniversary

Pope Pius and President Roosevelt Send Messages to LaCrosse

LaCrosse — (U) — A message of congratulations from President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and greetings from Pope Pius XI, were among honors heaped upon Bishop Alexander J. McGavick, as hundreds of religious from LaCrosse and vicinity observed his fiftieth anniversary in the priesthood.

Governor Philip LaFollette, speaking at the concluding banquet, said that while "under our system of government the church and state are separate, that does not mean that our people are unconcerned about matters of the soul. Wisconsin is proud of having a man of such character, (as Bishop McGavick) to play so important a part in the life of this state."

The Rev. Thomas F. Doyle of Wausau, assistant, in introducing George Cardinal Mundelein, Chicago, referred to the cardinal's recent verbal attack upon Chancellor Hitler of Germany and said: "Cardinal Mundelein's charges were made almost with the calm of a machine gun fire. Now that the smoke of battle is cleared away, I believe it will be a long time before a nation will want to again humiliate itself by electing to govern it such a poor excuse as a cast-off paper hanger."

Toast To Pontiff
The traditional toast to Pope Pius was offered by Cardinal Mundelein, who marveled "at his fortitude in such suffering and sorrow."

Bishop T. L. Lillis of Kansas City, 52 years a priest, declared "the hierarchy of America is the greatest established in any country in any century."

Choked with emotion, the celebrant thanked the gathering for the recognition bestowed upon him, all staged over his vigorous protest. "While I thank you," he said, "I forgive you."

The presidential message said: "Permit me to join with your other friends in offering hearty congratulations and warmest personal greetings upon the anniversary of your ordination to the priesthood. As a churchman and citizen your years have been a career of arduous distinction and great usefulness, and I trust that you may long be spared to continue your devoted labors for God and your fellow man."

Pupils Must Register Monday
for Daily Vacation Bible Classes

Monday will be the last day during which enrolments for the community daily vacation Bible school will be accepted. It was announced this morning by Homer J. Gebhardt, treasurer of the school. Students may still register for classes in any division.

Because the enrolment in the fifth grade class is too large students in that division now will hold their classes at the Trinity English Lutheran church instead of the Y. M. C. A. One hundred and eighty Appleton boys and girls already have finished their first week of instruction.

The annual Bible school picnic will be held Wednesday June 16, and a tour to the Onondaga Indian reservation is scheduled for students in the fifth through the tenth grades on Wednesday, June 23.

Classes in the Bible school will have a worship period at 8:45 each morning at the Trinity English Lutheran and First Congregational churches. After a half hour of worship, pupils in the sixth through the tenth grade divisions go to the Y. M. C. A. for classes while fifth graders stay at the Lutheran church. ## Rights of Citizen Involved in Quiz On Tax Avoidance

Lawrence Sees Need for
Caution by Newspapers,
Radio Stations

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, June 12.—A newspaper, press association, radio station and news agency engaged in disseminating the news of the proceedings of the joint congressional committee investigating avoidance of tax laws will be confronted next week with some novel questions as to where the citizen's rights begin and end when his character and integrity are formally placed on trial before the nation.

Heretofore, it has been conceded by the courts that a member of congress and a legislative committee are immune from prosecution for libel when they make defamatory statements during authorized proceedings, but the question has never arisen in the courts so far as known as to whether members of congress are immune from civil action or whether newspapers are free from suit if the legislative proceedings themselves are of doubtful constitutionality.

Not long ago, the court of appeals of the District of Columbia held that the late Senator Huey Long was answerable in court for having caused to be circulated outside of the halls of congress something which he said on the floor of the senate. Up to that time, it had been supposed that a senator could circulate his own remarks and enjoy the same immunity as he does during debate in congress.

Problems Arise

But while the rights of a member of congress to insure the character of a citizen by claiming constitutional immunity and privilege for what he says on the floor are generally upheld by the courts, the questions arising out of congressional investigations are not so clear. Thus, at one time, the supreme court of the United States upheld civil action against the sergeant-at-arms of the house of representatives for imprisoning a witness who refused to testify because the proceedings were unconstitutional. Damages were recovered. Likewise, individual suits were filed against members of congress at the same time.

Wherein may the hearings to be held next week by the joint congressional committee touch the border line of constitutionality?

In the first place, congressional committees cannot act as substitutes for the courts. Citizens guilty of a violation of the tax laws or any other laws have a right to be accused, tried and judged by the judicial branch of the government, and any usurpation of the rights of the courts by a congressional committee is subject to attack on constitutional grounds. Thus, in a famous case (Kilbourn vs. Thompson), the supreme court of the United States dealt with the effect of a house committee to get evidence of a violation of the bankruptcy laws and claimed that the purpose was to secure data on which to legislate. The supreme court held the proceeding to be invalid and that the committee had no lawful authority to require testimony. Here is what the court said:

"The constitution declares that the judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one supreme court and in such inferior courts as the congress may from time to time ordain and establish. If what we have said of the division of the powers of the government among the departments be sound, this is equivalent to a declaration that no judicial power is vested in the congress or either branch of it."

"If the investigation which the committee was directed to make was judicial in its character, and could only be properly and successfully made by a court of justice, and if it related to a matter wherein relief or redress could be had only by a judicial proceeding, we do not deem it necessary to discuss the proposition that the power attempted to be exercised was one conferred by the constitution to the judicial and not to the legislative department of the government. We think it is equally clear that the power is judicial and not legislative."

The situation next week is this: Certain citizens are alleged to have evaded or avoided the laws on taxes. If they "avoided" the taxes and complied with the letter of the law, they committed no crime. If they "evaded" the law and failed to pay taxes, they are subject to prosecution.

Broad Principle

But who is to determine the borderline? Are congressional committees to try citizens hereafter to determine whether or not they have complied with a law? The principle, it will be seen, is much broader than the fate of the few individuals, however selfish they may be, in their attitude toward the payment of taxes.

Likewise, the principle of whether or not a congressional committee may punish a citizen who has "avoided" the law but who has committed no crime is broad enough to bring into the forefront of attention whether newspapers and radio stations have a right to impute lack of integrity or any charge of impropriety to the individual who is defamed by the members of the committee through their direct questions or innuendoes.

Thus a member of congress may label a citizen and get away with it because the constitutional immunity is wide, but, in reporting the incident, there must be fairness so that the contrary statement or evidence of the citizen in his own defense is given equal attention. The fact that ex parte attacks are made in a morning session, for instance, and the defense is not offered until late in the day or the next day imposes new responsibilities on those who wish to present a "fair report." Likewise, the habit of members of congress in imparting information before a committee hearing begins or after it has recessed carries with it other dangers for those who report the imputations of lack of integrity that may be leveled against the taxpayers in the list selected for public condemnation next week.

Might Fight Publicity

In the main, the right of congress to investigate so as to secure data for purposes of legislation is unlimited, but it might happen that the taxpayers whose reputations are damaged or who are held up to public contempt by politically minded members of congress will seek redress and they might then set up the claim that the mention of their names and the taking of their testimony in public was not the only means by which congress could have acquired the necessary information. Hence, it would be argued that the publicity was part of a conspiracy to hurt the individuals rather than to get data on which to legislate.

Certainly, it would seem that the headlines of next week, as well as the news reports and radio broadcasts, may have to exercise extraordinary caution about indicting a citizen for "evasion" when the practicing "avoidance" is the expert of congressional "courts" trying a few citizens selected by executive whim for prosecution before the bar of public opinion is bound to be viewed by liberals and conservatives as a new use of governmental power because it is so directly personal and so plainly aimed at individuals, notwithstanding that all the information about the devices and schemes of law avoidance is already in possession of the treasury department and can as readily be transmitted to committees of congress to plug loopholes in the law. It is difficult to see what further information not already available to the treasury under existing laws can possibly be uncovered by a congressional inquiry and whether, when the investigation has ended, congress will really know anything more than it already knows or could know through treasury reports to congress which have not mentioned names. The process is so unusual that partisan politicians will not hesitate hereafter to pry into the personal affairs of the citizens if by so doing they can punish their opponents. Much depends on the restraint imposed by the committee members themselves on the proceedings, and, if it turns out that citizens have been plainly violating the law, another investigation will then seem to be in order, namely an inquiry to determine why the at-

500 Pupils Take Part in Lessons At Swim School

Two More Weeks of Training
Will be Given
Boys and Girls

More than 500 Appleton boys and girls yesterday completed their first week of instruction in the "Learn to Swim School" which is being sponsored for three weeks by the Appleton Post-Crescent and the Y. M. C. A. at the Y pool. All pupils will attend six class sessions.

Instructors this week stressed work intended to build up the confidence of the swimmer and teach them proper breathing and relaxation while in the water. During the first class meeting, pupils were required to swim a paddle or run in the pool and then take lessons in ducking their heads.

Stress Breathing

Correct breathing and relaxation while in the water was stressed during the second class period this week. Faults which pupils were cautioned to avoid include not relaxing properly, not breathing properly, bending knees in thrash, making thrash too wide, not pointing toes, failure to keep head while breathing instead of turning to side of face, failure to empty lungs under water before trying to inhale.

Leg and arm movements while swimming will be studied by pupils during class periods next week. The lex thrash will be emphasized during the lesson Monday and Tuesday while arm movements will be considered in class periods Thursday and Friday.

Three Work Crews Busy On Avenue WPA Project

The two WPA work crews installing new curb and gutter on College avenue today were increased to three in order to finish the time of the current work month, which ends July 9, by the end of June, the end of the government fiscal year. The change has been made so that a split payroll will be unnecessary and the entire work month period may be included in this fiscal year's report.

Seventy men are being employed on the project, according to Ervin Klebenow, WPA project inspector, and they are working seven and eight hours per day.

BUILD RUSTIC BRIDGES, FIREPLACES IN PARKS

Credit for Improvement In Autos Due to Owners

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York—Except in the matter of beauty, which is debatable, anyway, the American automobile of the present day is a marvel of reliability. So I propose that recognition be given at the next round of automobile shows to the people whose optimism and patience in suffering and disappointment made possible this achievement. That would not be the inventors, the factory takers, the designers or engineers, nor yet the money-operators in the street who promoted the manufacturing companies.

It wouldn't be Ford, Hudson, Knudson, Nash, Graham or Louis Chevrolet, and it wouldn't be Durant or any Dupont, either. It would be Mr. and Mrs. George Spelvin, the average Americans, and the great, reliable suckers who saved a little money and bought a family car and later on another, notwithstanding mechanical and moral failures of the industry which threw them into the financial burden of the experiments leading to perfection.

Starting with their first jalopy about twenty-five years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Spelvin have ridden in some terrible junks at great expense, but I think they are reaping their reward now, either in heaven or in the current models which slide along like the shadow of a bird on slick water, and with scarcely ever a moment's misbehavior under the hood.

These cars are the best dollar's worth that money ever could buy, and that is only fair, because there have been times when a happy family party on a Sunday outing on suburban roads could figure on $5 worth of horn trouble alone.

Dealer's Guarantee Was Worse Than the Cars
Not only were the cars no good in those days, but the dealer's and manufacturer's guarantee was even worse. A foul and cynical snare which promised to make good defects in material and workmanship and never to my considerable, personal knowledge of such failures, replaced so much as a two-bit bolt or a dime-a-dozen washer.

If the engine fell out in the middle of the road, that was no fault of the engine itself or the genius who forgot to wire it down, but an act of God, the devil or a bad driver.

Wheels came off and rolled gaily away through daisy fields or delectable windows, the lamps wouldn't light, the gears wouldn't shift, the engines wouldn't run, and ever and anon Mr. Spelvin, looking along with the kiddies and the little woman in his costly car, would feel an ominous vibration in his highly sensitized toes, and know that $60 worth of rear-end gears had failed to mesh and were grinding themselves to shrapnel in the housing.

Wires Came Off and Rolled Gaily
He then paid $10 to be towed to the hair of a roadside brigand who charged him $80 more to repair the damage, and, like as not, $1 a day to store the baroque until he could borrow the money from the loan-shark to bail it out.

They made their brake rods of wire cable which stretched like rubber bands, noble experiment, to be sure, but expensive to Mr. Spelvin. They misjudged the heat of the exhaust lines, with the result that Mr. Spelvin often paid specialists' rates to solemn consultants at the roadside clinics, who put in new gadgets, but warned him frankly, and with truth, that this model was just another turkey in the long and painful process of improving the breed.

His tires blew out or just sighed quietly and died softly, and sometimes his steering wheel or his gear-shift lever came off in his hands as he pointed out the beauties of the hot-dog and souvenir stands along the lovely open road.

Paid More for Cars
In Old Days Than Now
Twenty years ago, Mr. Spelvin paid a four-hundred horse-shoe more than he pays today for an 8-cylinder car that rarely seems to take a deep breath, even in heavy traffic or going up the hills. He paid extra for the little 10-cent mirror that gave him a third eye for cops behind, extra for the spare tire, tube and rim, extra for the frames to hold his license plates and extra for the nickle-kewpie, brownie or other aesthetic dingbat on the radiator cap.

For a long time he paid extra for the lighting equipment, and the self-starter, and I am not sure but that the manufacturer's label was a little something extra, too.

Honor, of course, to the horny-handed, square-jawed heroes of labor who put these traps together, and honor to the inventor, the financier and the man who drew the pretty pictures of the ads. But honor first, and in greatest measure, to Mr. and Mrs. George Spelvin, the average, indomitable guinea pigs of the automotive industry whose woes, optimism and humble earnings are built into the car that rolls along serene, comfortable and almost infallible today.

Concentrate Efforts to Make City's 380 Acres of Park Land More Beautiful

BY L. J. DERUS
With increasing use of the city's parks shown by the many groups using them daily, the park board this year is concentrating its efforts on beautifying the 380 acres of parks and equipping them with more picnic facilities.

Park workers are winding up the spring program which included construction of rustic bridges and huge stone fireplaces. Grubbing around old tree stumps is being done to protect them from earth bugs and insects and about 800 new trees have been planted, according to Harold Jerke, park superintendent.

One of the largest improvements this year has been made in Erb park where a lagoon 80 feet long and 40 feet wide has been constructed. A rustic bridge with oak mainstays and cedar walk and railings has been built across the lagoon.

Contains Fish
The pool, more than two feet deep, contains more than 800 various kinds of water plants and about 250 gold fish. The lagoon is situated at the southeast corner of the park and when a path from the street is completed will make a charming entrance to the park. About the pool is a flower garden and several hundred northern spruce and dwarf pine trees.

Persons who in the past have found it necessary to travel out of the city to hold wiener and marshmallow roasts will now be able to hold their afternoon and evening outings at the parks. Three large fireplaces of stone, measuring about four feet deep, four feet wide and almost four feet high have been built in Erb park, six in Pierce park and five in Alicia park.

At Pierce park a rustic bridge 72 feet long crosses a large ravine, about 22 feet deep. The bridge is near the east side of the park and presents a pleasing view from the pavilion in the center of recreation area.

New Benches
Pierce park, perhaps, is more in demand than the other parks in the city and new benches will be built for the pavilion which will increase the seating capacity for outdoor programs from 1,500 to 2,300 persons.

There are seven tennis courts in Pierce park and two at Erb park and all are almost in continual demand. Two courts now are under construction at the City park. The two courts at Telulah park will be put into first class shape soon for play by tennis enthusiasts of the Fourth ward.

Improvements in Memorial park at the south end of Memorial drive of the city are now being planned. The grass will be groomed and tables and benches placed in the park.

Plan Swim Beach
Plans also are underway for development of Lutz park. A special committee named recently by Mayor Goodland is at present working on a program which may lead to the building of a bathing beach at the park.

Because of the extensive use of the tennis courts at Pierce park a special term of said court to be held at the court house in the city of Appleton, in said county, there will be heard and considered: The application of "Theresa Schneider, administratrix of the estate of Susan (Gina) (Jacobina) Speel, deceased, late of the City of Appleton, in said county, for allowance of debts or claims paid in good faith without filing or allowance as required by law, and for the assignment of the residue of the estate of said deceased to such persons as are by law entitled thereto; and for the determination and adjudication of the inheritance tax, if any, payable in said estate."

Dated June 2, 1937.
By order of the Court,
FRED V. HEINEMANN, Judge.

Council Campfire And Parade Will Feature Camporee

Boy Scouts Gather in New London Today for Annual Event

New London—A long parade of Boy Scouts and high school bands followed by a council campfire session at Hatten Memorial park, will be the attractions at the eighth annual Valley Council Boy Scout camporee which is being held at the park this weekend. The parade will start at 7 o'clock this evening. Massed assemblies of as many as 3,000 persons have attended council campfire sessions at past rallies. Feature of the parade will be the appearance of the Sons of the American Legion Pipe and Drum corps of the Oneida Johnson post at Appleton. The unit placed second in the American Legion state convention at Neenah-Menasha last year and will take part in the Milwaukee convention in August. The New London High school band also will participate and other bands expected to join are those from Marion, Shawano and Clintonville.

Campfire Session
The campfire session will be held under the tree back of the bathhouse at the Hatten park. Electric lights and loud speaker facilities have been arranged. Around a huge campfire the various scout troops will present stunts of all kinds besides displaying and explaining their works of handicraft and woodcraft. There also will be community singing.

The influx of nearly 1,000 boy scouts from Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna, Hortonville, Marion, Shawano, Clintonville, Bear Creek, Bowler, Black Creek, Seymour, Kimberly, Combined Locks and New London last night transformed the previously undisturbed park into a beehive of activity. Smoke from dozens of campfires hung in a heavy shroud over the park in the threatening weather last night, lending atmosphere to the camp area.

Tent Tents
Thirteen members of New London's Troop No. 7 of the American Legion have pitched their tents with hundreds of others. The Rev. Ralph R. Holliday has assumed the scoutmastership for the occasion and is camping with the boys. The New London scout group includes Ernest and Ralph Holliday, Robert Brown, Jack Sneezy, Orland Otis, Gene and Dick Wyman, Jack and Robert Seering, Howard Fox, Wilton Quant, James Christianson and Dick Demming.

The artificial swimming pool was opened to scouts to admit the first bathers yesterday. About 120 made use of the pool between 6:30 and 7:30 last evening. It will be open for use to all the public after 1:30 tomorrow afternoon.

Brews Hope for Win Sunday Night Against Leaders

Clintonville Coming to New London for Game Under Lights

New London—The Wolf Valley league schedule calls for a game at Neopit tomorrow afternoon but the New London Knapstein Brews are concentrating all their powers on the postponed game with Clintonville which will be held under the lights at the city ball park here tomorrow night. They hope to be the first to upset the Trunkers in their championship march.

Clintonville was slated for the league championship before the season began and was scheduled to meet New London in the first encounter before the game was postponed. Since that time Clintonville has won five straight games. The Brews have lost only one real decisive game with Waupaca and were edged out on their first game with Weyauwega, 3 to 2. They swamped Marion and Shawano by wide margins.

New Outfielder
Phil Palmer of Shiocton, burly outfielder who has played with Seymour, worked out with the Brews this week and will appear in the line-up Sunday. "Red" Watkins has given up his post to him. "Tip" Krohn probably will take the mound against Neopit in the afternoon and Ivan Beckert, Manager Polaski's favorite star pitcher, will hurl against Clintonville in the evening.

New Demming started out of his batting slump during practice this week and should show favorably in the effort to upset Clintonville. Last year he topped by far all batting averages in the Brews and Merchant lineups. "Duffy" Edminster, M. Brown, 2b, usually the Brews lightest hitter, has taken the lead this year.

Graduate Speakers Trace Development of Schools In Commencement Talks

Kaukauna—Ninety-three students were graduated from Kaukauna High school in commencement ceremonies held in the Civic auditorium last night before a crowd of close to 1,200 people. N. M. Haupt, president of the school board, and Superintendent James F. Cavanaugh presented the diplomas to the graduates at the close of the program.

Instead of a single commencement address, 19 students, including valedictorian, Irma Lambie, and the salutatorian, Robert Hopfensperger, traced the development of the American school system in a series of speeches interspersed with musical numbers.

The graduates filed into the auditorium after the crowd of parents, teachers and friends was seated and occupied the front rows near the stage.

In introducing the subject, Helen Hopfensperger, salutatorian, illustrated the cooperation which has grown up between school and city by pointing to the use which townspeople make of the Civic auditorium and gymnasium. The speaker, she said, has become a community center, occupying an important place in the lives of the city's adults as well as offering academic training for the young people.

Mann Anniversary

The occasion for the talks, by the students on American education is the one hundredth anniversary of the public services of Horace Mann, eminent American educator. Miss Hopfensperger said. She described the ever-widening program in the high school, the balance which is being sought in the introduction of athletics, forensics, dramatics, and various societies.

Lorain Schauer explained the various steps in the school system as it exists today, namely elementary schools, secondary schools (now 'high school'), colleges, and universities.

Before and after the Revolutionary war to about 1783, education was confined largely to private instruction given only to those able to pay for it. Robert Nagan said in his talk on colonial schools. There were four types of elementary instruction: first, the tutor; second, the teacher hired jointly by several families; third, the parish school; fourth, the charity school supported by donations from the wealthy for education of children of the poor.

Secondary Schools

The Latin grammar schools were the secondary institutions of that time. Nagan said, furnishing instruction for boys from 14 to 17 years of age and preparing them for college. "A few very bright boys from poor families were admitted on scholarships, but on the whole the students came from families who paid for the education," he stated.

Colleges at that time were sectarian institutions. "The course of study offered by them was about equivalent to the course offered today in our high school," Nagan said.

The transition period—1785 to 1810—was outlined by Margaret Ann Flanagan. "This period," she said, "may be regarded as a change or shift in the colonial plan of education to a conception of a school system suitable for participation in a democracy."

A New Order

The Declaration of Independence proclaimed a new political and social order, Miss Flanagan stated. "In order to make these principles permanent, it was necessary to educate the youth in the new freedom which they were to enjoy and carry on."

It was Thomas Jefferson who became the leader in this educational pioneering by introducing in 1779 in the Virginia legislature a bill providing for free public schools. Jefferson's dream of free public education did not materialize during his life, but he did found the University of Virginia in 1820 and considered his work in behalf of public education one of the three accomplishments of his life.

"About 1810 a marked change was seen in the American people," Gay Pahl, the next speaker, said. "The working class wanted schooling for their children . . . and when it was realized that even by selling all the reserve land, not enough revenue could be collected to support education, the people began agitation for public schools supported by taxation."

supervise many grades with inadequate pay. Michael Frank, the son of a poor German immigrant, was characterized as the "father of the public school system in Wisconsin" by Viola Wrensch, the next speaker. After moving from the East with his parents to Southport, now Kenosha, Frank became owner and editor of the Southport Telegraph. It was through this paper and his position as a delegate to the territorial legislature that he fought for public schools. He finally succeeded in getting the town to pass a law providing for education for all children. The first public school in the state was established in 1845 in the basement of the Catholic church in Kenosha.

First Academy

The first academy in the United States was established by Benjamin Franklin in 1749, Mary Ann Kalista, the next speaker, said. During the period from 1750 to 1850 the academies were prominent, but, being privately maintained, retarded the growth of high schools. They did, however, start secondary education for girls.

Because the academies were of private nature, a school of more democratic rank was needed. This led to the establishment in Boston in 1821 of the first high school, Rita Otto, succeeding speaker, explained. The first Wisconsin high school was started in Southport, now Kenosha, in 1849.

Speaking on compulsory education, Agnes A. Wallace stated that the American Federation of Labor recognized the need for this and advocated that the state should be the custodian of the child. By 1918, only one state, Mississippi, had no compulsory law.

The next three students, Theodore Weber, Patricia D. Kline, and Harvey Driessen, traced the development of vocational education.

Handwork Class

Weber pointed out that a class in handwork was first introduced in a workmen's school in New York in 1878 and was the forerunner of our manual training courses. Miss Kline described the founding of home economic departments in the agricultural colleges in 1870 and reviewed the development of this study. Driessen talked of the aims of agricultural departments and explained the Smith-Hughes act of 1917 which provided federal funds for the betterment and advancement of this study in secondary schools.

The World War awakened the American public to the need for a program of health and physical education. Dorothy Zuelzke stated in her speech. Twenty-five per cent of the men drafted in 1918 were unfit, she said, and after 1918 states began adopting the compulsory physical education law.

Share Support

"The state and the nation should share to a larger extent in high school support," Laurene Rausch told the audience in her talk on state and federal aids. She pointed out that the high schools receive 98 per cent of their income from local property taxation. "Since the high school prepares for a wider living and a higher sense of civic responsibility, it follows that the state and nation should support them better than they do at present."

She outlined the bill now pending in Congress which would provide for federal aid to high schools, allotting one hundred million the first year, two hundred million the second, and three hundred million the third, the figure to remain at this last level.

Citizens who "believe that the state and federal government should give financial support to the high schools were urged to support the bill by Frieda Bloy, the next speaker.

Two Principles

"The American conception of public education involves two fundamental principles: first, public taxation for the support of schools; second, compulsory attendance on the part of children who are fit," Irma Lambie, valedictorian, said in her summation of the talks.

"We are in a new era dominated by new economic and social forces. This calls for trained leadership. Our school system must furnish this leadership. . . . The education of the masses is essential if this nation is to endure."

She urged her classmates to join the Alumni association.

Film Tells Story Of Timberlands

'God's Country and the Woman' Is Picturization Of Curwood Novel

"God's Country and the Woman", Warner Bros. brilliant picturization of the James Oliver Curwood novel of the same name—dealing with a feud between lumber companies in the deep forests of the Great North-West—is the feature attraction at the Elite Theater today and Sunday, with George Brent and Beverly Roberts in the leading roles.

The thrilling dramatic romance of the story is heightened by the fact that the scenes—almost all of which are in the open—were photographed wholly in natural color.

Brent and Miss Roberts have an excellent supporting cast including such outstanding favorites as Barton MacLane, Robert Barrat, Allen Hale, El Brendel, Billy Bevan and Joseph King. Hundreds of real lumberjacks appear in the exciting scenes.

Brent is first seen as a rich idler, who makes a casual visit to the woods where his brother owns a vast tract of timber—and is attempting by crooked methods to injure the business of a rival lumber company managed by a girl Miss Roberts.

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—That time of quarter the schoolgirl puts on the line to see Garbo love Robert Taylor may be compounded, for all she knows, of close-ups of Garbo loving Frederick March.

The chances of such romantic association between screen love and prosaic coins admittedly are small. Yet dreams have been made on lesser stuff, and if the thought gives any sensation of intimacy with Taylor I have no doubt that John Nickolaus will say "You're welcome, girls!"

Nickolaus is the brain-daddy of the silver mine in a tank at the Metro studios, where the reclamation of the precious metal from celluloid is a sideline activity of the laboratories.

The tank-mine produces upward of $60,000 in silver annually. But the silver itself, nice as it is to have around, is not the whole object of the process. This exists in order to save and re-use the hypsulphite of soda solution used to "fix" film.

Developed film is "fixed" or made permanent by being passed through the "hypo" solution, which makes the film transparent by removing the free silver and leaving the metal only on the darkened portions of the picture. The released silver eventually accumulates to an extent where the solution can absorb no more, hence is useless.

At this point it is pumped into cells, or wooden tanks, in which are large plates of aluminum. An electric current is shot through, and the silver particles leap to the aluminum plates like Garbo to the arms of Taylor. How Taylor fared you saw in "Camille," but all that happens to the aluminum plates is that they get electroplated with the silver.

When this is done, the "hypo" is fresh and usable again, and is pumped back into the developing machines.

The silver is then cracked off the plates, melted down into bricks, and sold. That's how the schoolgirl's coin may trace its lineage, perhaps, to the by-products of screen romance.

In silent days the exhausted "hypo" was thrown away. Then a chemical firm approached studios, offering to haul the stuff away for nothing. Cecil B. DeMille became the curious, learned that silver was being reclaimed, and had a reclamation machine set up in his studio. To day he owns a paperweight made from the first block of silver thus produced in a studio.

Eau Claire Man Loses Savings to Swindlers
Eau Claire—(7)—Police today were unable to console a 71-year-old man who was swindled yesterday out of his total savings, $1,600 which he had saved since a northern Wisconsin bank failed some years ago.

Christ Benson, Eau Claire, the victim, told police he became acquainted with two young men a few days ago, one of whom told him he was the only son of an oil magnate. The pair persuaded Benson to draw his money from the bank, place it in a tin box with $3,000 of theirs, as evidence of good faith. They left the box with him and departed.

The two told the retired farmer that they would return the next day with twice the amount of money Benson contributed. When they failed to return Benson forced the box open to find only newspapers.

Water Utility Is Told To Surrender $33,600
Madison—(7)—Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann signed an order Friday directing the City Water Company of Marinette to turn over $33,600 to the city to be distributed to customers of the new municipal water utility.

The city bought the plant for about $300,000 and has been operating it since April 1. Judge Hoppmann several months ago approved a public service commission order issued late in 1934 reducing company rates about $15,000 a year. Funds equal to the reduction have been set aside by the company since Jan. 1, 1935, for refunds in the commission's order was sustained.

Acquisition by the municipality of the case so far as the Dancourt circuit court and the commission are concerned.

The city will act as trustee of the $33,600 and the council will determine how the money shall be distributed to customers.

June Days are Ideal for Enthusiasts of Hiking

BY CLARA HUSSONG

June days are ideal for the hiker who likes to follow shady woodland paths in search of ferns. By midsummer the rich moist woods where some of our most interesting ferns grow are apt to be too hot and breeziness for comfort but on a cool June day the searcher for ferns can travel for miles without discomfort. If you choose a windy day you won't even be bothered by mosquitoes.

Most people, even those who know wild flowers and trees, know very little about ferns. The reason for this is that very little was known about them and their growth until 1848 when it was discovered how these flowerless plants reproduced themselves. This, compared to the study of flowering plants, is recent knowledge.

Since then many interesting books have been written on ferns. One of the most interesting for the beginner is Parson's "How to Know Ferns." If, after reading the opening chapters which tell of the author's adventures in fern hunting, you don't catch her enthusiasm and love for these little known plants there is little hope that you will ever be numbered among those who go "fern crazy."

It was while looking through this book that I first decided to make a study of the ferns of Wisconsin. Like most people I could name just two ferns, bracken and maidenhair. With the help of this book, borrowed from the local library, I was able to identify about twenty more in a few months' time.

Both the Latin and English names by which the ferns were known in this book were used by botanists at the time the book was published, about 40 years ago. By reading articles on ferns in magazines I discovered that many of the names had been changed. In order to bring my knowledge up-to-date I purchased a fern book of my own, "Field Book of Common Ferns," by Durand. This is a companion volume to "American Wild Flowers," "Wild Birds and Their Music," "American Trees and Shrubs," and other nature books published by G. P. Putnam and Sons.

Never Bear Fruit
I found this to be an ideal book in many ways. It was small enough to carry around on field trips when looking for new varieties. It contains both photographs of ferns growing in their natural habitats and fine drawings showing each frond in detail and the position of the spores. The key for identification was so well-written that I had no trouble in correcting any mistakes I had made in naming my collection. The names which the ferns are given in this book are still in use today.

The first thing the beginner will want to know in studying ferns is how to tell them from other plants.

Durand gives three distinctive characteristics of ferns:

"Ferns never bear flowers"
"Instead of seeds, ferns produce fruit-dots, or spore-cases, that contain spores from which new ferns develop."

"The young leaves or fronds of true ferns are at first tightly coiled like watch-springs and uncoil as the fronds continue to grow larger." Several wild flowers and weeds have leaves which resemble the fern fronds but if you see any sign of bud or flower or if the leaf buds are folded you can be sure this is not a fern. Meadow rue and wild columbine are often mistaken for maidenhair but the wild flowers haven't the wiry black stem that the maidenhair fern has.

When you can tell a fern from a flowering plant your next step will be to identify the different varieties. Between 20 and 30 varieties will be all you will be able to find in most localities and compared to the thousands of flowering plants and hundreds of birds you will find in the same area you can see what a simple matter it is to learn to be the fern authority in your neighborhood.

Take a well-illustrated fern book with you on your field trip. You may choose almost any kind of ground to cover because ferns grow almost everywhere. Along the road, sides you will find lady ferns and New York ferns; in marshy places look for sensitive and marsh ferns. Maidenhair, oak, long and broad beech, and several of the wood ferns grow in moist, shady woods. In the swamps you will find the crested shield and along the river banks you will see great crowns of ostrich ferns.

Quite a number of ferns grow on rocks, sometimes embedded in moss and other times seeming to grow in just a dot of soil on bare limestone. These rock ferns are among the smallest and daintiest of the whole tribe of ferns. Sometimes the most unlikely place yields the best find. I contracted "fern fever" three years ago and I don't intend to get over it. To visit a new spot and recognize old friends among the ferns is one of the rewards for my persistent study that summer and a thrill comes every time I can add a new name to my list of fern friends.

Jane Withers Is Starred in Film

'Ginger' Plays Leading Role in New Picture, 'Angel's Holiday'

Warning! It's "Angel's" day off, which means trouble in the offing! Whizzing headlong into the offing looking for trouble is "Ginger" Jane Withers, harum-scarum half-pint of dynamite off on her rip-roaringest rampage in "Angel's Holiday," which will play at the Appleton Theater next week Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Mischievous Jane, little sweetiepie that she is, puts the "holler" into "holiday" when she routs the riot squad with its own tear gas and makes trouble as fast as she makes headlines when she turns detective. Aided and abetted in her topsyturvy laugh spree by Robert Kent, Joan Davis and Sally Blane, Jane turned sleuth, tracks down and plagues the very lives of a murderer band of gangster-kidnapers, who welcome the refuge of jail promised with the final arrival of the police.

With Spencer Tracy, Gladys George and Franchot Tone in the leading roles "They Gave Him A Gun" will be the second feature on this program. Franchot Tone deserves gentle characters to play a "Tough Guy." Spencer Tracy deserves the "Tough Guy" character for a kindly adviser of a wayward youth; and Gladys, following her success in "Valiant Is The Word For Carrie," plays another valiant role as a war nurse who marries a racketeer she fails to save in "They Gave Him A Gun."

The picture based on the novel by Major William Joyce Cowen and directed by W. S. VanDyke II, deals with the effect of war on the psychology of youth, tracing the transition of a kindly young clerk who goes through war into a dangerous post-war racketeer. Franchot Tone is a clerk, drafted and taught in warfare that "all men are equal with guns in their hands," a maxim that leads him to crime and disaster in later life.

Soil Waste Is Result of Flood

10 Million Tons Washed On Roads, Bottomlands Of Ohio Valley

Of the many million tons of fertile soil washed from upland farms by the January flood, nearly 40,000,000 tons were spread over bottomland and city streets in the Ohio Valley, reports the Soil Conservation Service.

The report is based on a survey which included actual measurements of soil removal and silt deposits all along the valley from Pittsburgh, Pa. to Cairo, Ill. Even larger quantities of agricultural soil probably were carried down the river below Cairo.

The swiftly moving waters deposited more than 25,000,000 tons of silt in the rural areas of the valley proper, a further 3,000,000 tons on the bottom land of several tributaries near the confluences and nearly 4,000,000 tons in 165 towns and cities of the valley—based on sample measurements in twenty-seven river communities most seriously affected.

Farming land in the valley also was damaged severely by more than 11,000,000 tons of sand churned up from the river bottom and laid down over adjoining fields and meadows.

GERMANS OPEN DRIVE
Berlin—German's economy campaign has led to the opening of kitchens in many cities to teach women how to cook fish.

"Germany must become a nation of fish eaters," the newspapers argue. "An immense capital swims in our lakes and rivers, waiting for the fishermen's nets to exploit it for the nation's needs."

But unless hausfraus can serve up fish in a variety of delicious dishes, officials fear that this aspect of the large-scale drive to make the reich self-sufficient may fail. Hence the kitchens.

MONTGOMERY PLAYS UNUSUAL ROLE

Metro Goldwyn Mayer has dared to bring to the screen the amazingly strange and fascinating drama of Danny, the hell boy gigolo... who had a way with women... and who killed the women he kissed... a criminally brilliant, charming thrill crazy youth... a pathological case... "NIGHT MUST FALL" will electrify you as did the stage play for eighty solid weeks in New York and London. Robert Montgomery in the star role, plays an entirely different role than you have ever seen him in, and Rosalind Russell, his sweetheart, the girl who loathed the killer, but could not help loving the man. You may see this unique production at the Appleton Theatre on next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, on a double bill with a comedy feature "Society Fever."

'LOVE IS NEWS' MAKES BIG HIT

The romance of a thrilling threesome whose kisses crash the headlines and whose escapades sell extras, with handsome Tyrone Power outrunning his "Lloyds of London" role, lovely Loretta Young bringing her fresh charm to a portrayal that is enchantingly different, and Don Ameche creating a dashing new screen characterization, provides hilarious excitement in the Twentieth Century-Fox streamline hit, "Love Is News," opening at the Elite theater for 3 days starting next Wednesday.

Congratulations Bob!
OUT in Hollywood today it's "hats off" to Bob Montgomery, and rightly so! Bob took the biggest gamble a star can take—and he won!
Few stars would have dared to play the role of Danny, the psychopathic, woman-killing gigolo of "Night Must Fall." It's the part of a criminally brilliant youth with a strange fascination for women... a lover who kills the beautiful women he kisses. Not at all the sort of dashing debonaire role of the usual Bob Montgomery.
But Bob took it. And he has made it the surprise dramatic sensation of 1937! He scores a dramatic triumph to take its place with Robinson's "Little Caesar", Laughton's "Captain Bligh" and other truly great dramatic performances!
"Night Must Fall" will shock and stun you with the daring of its theme... just as the play electrified audiences for 80 record-smashing weeks. More frenzied than "Fury"! More powerful than "Public Enemy"! And Bob Montgomery will amaze you with one of the most terrifyingly brilliant characterizations in the history of the screen.
Congratulations Bob! More power to you!
Louis Lutz, Mgr.

Colbert Coming To Rio Theater

Stars in "I Met Him in Paris," Comedy-Romance With Modern Background

"I Met Him in Paris," third in the smashing series of successful films turned out by the trio of Claudette Colbert as star, Wesley Ruggles as director, and Claude Binyon as writer, arrives next Friday at the Rio Theater. Previous successes credited to the three-star team are "The Gilded Lily" and "The Bride Comes Home."

Like the two earlier hits, "I Met Him in Paris" is a comedy-romance with an ultra-modern background. It switches from Paris to St. Moritz, winter sports resort high in the Swiss Alps, and then back again to the French capital. The winter sports setting is one of the outstanding unusual features which distinguish the film. Another outstanding twist is the unique romantic situation — Miss Colbert's wavering between two men, unable to decide which of the two she really loves, with both equally determined to marry her.

"I Met Him in Paris" is typical of the Colbert-Ruggles-Binyon combination—a refreshingly novel story combined with gay, merrily mad comedy, and still bright, scintillating comedy lines that will soon take their places as current "wise-cracks." Miss Colbert's role is reminiscent of her parts in the two earlier hits turned out by the team—in that she portrays, once again, a snappy, up-to-the-minute girl who has a line to top anyone else's gag.

Nero Wolfe, that jovial, sedentary detective, has returned to the screen, this time in the guise of Walter Connolly. The occasion is Rex Stout's "The League of Frightened Men," the second feature on the program.

Featured in other important roles are Irene Harvey, Eduardo Cinnelero, Allyn Brook, and Edward McNamara. And these, and others, are involved in a most perplexing triple-murder case. Even Nero Wolfe is for a time stymied regarding the solution.

'Once a Doctor' Is A Thrilling Story

Dealing with the heroic efforts of a young physician to rehabilitate himself after he has been unjustly stripped of his reputation and driven from practice, "Once a Doctor," comes from the First National studios to the Elite Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, Bargain Days.

Donald Woods, who was so excellent in "Anthony Adverse," plays the doctor, Jean Muir, for the first time a "glamor girl," is the feminine influence that helps him in his struggle and crowns his victory. Miss Muir and Woods are together for the first time since "As the Earth Turns," which was made three years ago.

Charles Ruggles Plays In 'Turn Off the Moon'

"Turn Off the Moon," which plays at the Rio Theater on Wednesday and Thursday, is as gay a musical comedy as Hollywood has yet produced. Introducing three teams, Charles Ruggles and Ben Blue, Kenny Baker and Phil Harris and Eleanor Whitney and Johnny Downs, including three song hits, featuring dance numbers as dazzling as only movie dancing can be, "Turn Off the Moon" is a hit.

The story kids astrology as a royal aid to romance and an additional headache to Charles Ruggles' frustrated sweetheart.

The world's first airplane factory was established in France by the Voisin brothers.

'Night Must Fall' Is Novel Picture

Adopting a technique of story construction that is entirely new on the screen, MGM introduces a novel picture in "Night Must Fall," which will be shown at the Appleton Theater next week Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The film is a daring venture in the production field, but even more experimental for Robert Montgomery who deliberately chose to drop his accustomed heroic roles for the characterization of a pathological killer. His performance is remarkable from every standpoint.

There is no element of mystery in the narrative. It is the peculiarly effective account of a youth whose mind is bent on crime. The situation is complicated by the romance between him and Rosalind Russell as a girl who finds herself in the unenviable position of loving a man whom she knows to be bad.

Montgomery played in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyne," "Piccadilly Jim" and similar successful films. Miss Russell is remembered for her outstanding work in "Craig's Wife," and "Rendezvous." In the cast are players from the original stage company who appeared in the play for 55 consecutive weeks. Among them are Dame May Whitty, Merle Tottenham, and Kathleen Harrison.

If you ever had the ambitions to scale the social heights — and who hasn't? — "Society Fever," the second feature on this program, may point the way for you. But, more likely, it will discourage you once and for all.

Remember, Tuesday Night Hollywood is played at this theater.

Rohan in Bitter Attack on State Farm Department

Charges Commissioners Don't now Difference Between 'Bull and Pig'

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—A tirade against the department of agriculture and markets by William Rohan, Kaukauna member of the assembly, during which he asserted that commissioners and some employees of the department "don't know the difference between a pig and a bull," amused his legislative mates Friday morning until an unsympathetic member succeeded in having Rohan's remarks ruled out of order.

Rohan who was exploded frequently on subjects in which he has a deep interest during the present session, delivered his volatile remarks during a debate on a cheese dealers' licensing measure sponsored by the department of agriculture and markets has done for the Wisconsin farmer.

"The department has raised the prices of milk for farmers," Hitt replied.

This brought up a subject on which Rohan has spoken his mind before. The Kaukauna democrat has denounced the department for fixing fluid milk prices in the Fox River valley area beyond the reach of the ordinary consumer housewife.

"Yes," returned Rohan, "they have raised milk prices. They raised the price of milk in my district because our state senator at one time was a milk peddler."

Milk distributors, he averred, are able to sell milk at a big profit at six cents a quart. But the poor people in Kaukauna and Little Chute and these towns have to pay 10 cents. Why? Because if they sold it for six cents the Milwaukee people would wonder why they're paying more. The city people don't understand these things."

"Like Mud Turtles" And, he continued earnestly, the commissioners "act like mud turtles. I'm going to find out if they're square shooters."

At this point, while fellow members were snuffing heartily, Assemblyman H. S. Halvorsen, an austere gentleman from Vernon county, arose to insist that Rohan's remarks were straying rather far from the subject in hand, namely the cheese dealers' licensing bill.

The presiding officer sustained the point, and Rohan, who had finished his denunciation anyway, sat down without protest.

Reader Says Duplicate Bridge Improves Game

(Copyright, 1937, Ely Culbertson)
"Dear Mr. Culbertson:
"It is undeniable, I think, that duplicate bridge has contributed greatly to the general improvement in bidding and play during the last few years. But, in taking the credit for this improvement, duplicate also should stand the rap for having spread a certain amount of grief. It is all very well for duplicate players to incline strongly toward no trump and major suit contracts in their pursuit of top scores. But, since duplicate still is bridge, it must follow that the neglected minor suits will turn around and bite every once in a while. It seems to me particularly foolish for a player to be influenced by the denomination of the suit when he is considering the best slam contract. From my experience with duplicate, I feel that the mere fact that one bids and makes a slam is guarantee of better than average score. Why, then, aim at a top and risk a bottom by passing up a completely sound minor suit for a doubtful major?"

"Here is a hand, culled from a recent duplicate, which all the experts bit the dust and all the palookas romped merrily home with the slam:
"North, dealer.
"Both sides vulnerable.
AK
KJ 7 6
AQJ 7 5 4

WEST EAST
J 8 7 5 4 Q 10 6 3 2

The bidding at the 'expert' tables was:
North East South West
1 diamond Pass 1 heart Pass
4 hearts Pass 5 diamonds Pass
6 hearts Pass 6 diamonds Pass
"All their vaunted skill could not deprive the defenders of a club and a trump trick. At the 'palooka' tables, the bidding was similar, but the final contract vastly different.
North East South West
1 diamond Pass 1 heart Pass
4 hearts Pass 5 diamonds Pass
6 diamonds Pass 6 hearts Pass
"Now it was the defenders who were 'out of luck.' Regardless of East's opening lead, it was a simple matter for declarer (in this case North) to establish South's king and queen of clubs for discard purposes. This done, there was no necessity of capturing the queen of hearts. North merely discarded the two low hearts on the king-queen of clubs and spread the hand.
"The experts were much disgruntled at the fact that they had to lose a trump trick, but personally I feel that they had no cause for complaint. There is nothing remote about the 3-1 break that actually occurred. It is simply a case of allowing 'duplicate philosophy' to interfere with sound bridge.
"Yours very truly,
"P. S.: I was one of the experts!"
I fully agree with the correspondent's remarks on the folly of allowing oneself to be too greatly influenced by the fact that one is playing duplicate. There are technical differences, of course, between rubber bridge and duplicate, both in bidding and play, but any one who sticks to sound bridge will be up with the leaders.

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk
A letter from Mr. William G. Maurer of Allandale, Florida, reached me last month.
"The story of Stanley in Africa," he wrote, "is very interesting to Dr. Fred Puleston of Daytona Beach, who is, I believe, the last living member of the Stanley expedition. He is the author of 'African Drums,' and delivers many lectures on Africa and Stanley. Dr. Puleston is a well-known physician and has a large practice in Daytona Beach."
It was pleasing to receive this news-note about someone who was with Stanley during his daring travels through Africa. Largely because of the work of Stanley, and those who went with him, Africa is no longer the "Dark Continent" it used to be called.
Amos Missimore, a school pupil, asks me this question:
"Was the big crater in Arizona caused by a comet?"
Meteor Crater, near Winslow, Ariz., is a great hole, about four-fifths of a mile wide and 600 feet deep. There is little doubt that it was caused by some object, or group of objects, from outer space. Several tons of stone and iron, of the nature of meteors, have been picked up from the area.
The hole may have been made by a swarm of meteors, or by the "head" of a small comet. It is believed that the heavier parts of the comets contain material like that in meteors. Some comets have vanished from the sky, and in later years we have had meteor showers instead of visits by the comets. Meteors in these showers appear to be bits of broken comets. It also may be that the hole in Arizona was made when a single meteor of giant size exploded just after striking the surface of the earth.
A letter signed "D. A. S." asks:
"Where and when did the first newspaper begin?"
The first newspaper on record seems to have been published in ancient Rome, something like 2,000 years ago. It was called the "Acta Diurna," meaning "Daily Events." It was hand-written, not printed, but was posted in public places for all to read.
Peiping, China, has laid claim to being the home of the world's oldest existing newspaper. The "Tsing-Pao" (or "News") is said to date back 1,400 years.
London, Paris and Frankfurt, Germany, have claims to being the first cities in Europe where newspapers were published by means of the printing press. All these cities had printed newspapers three centuries ago.

Conservative Makeup Best For Brides

BY ELSIE PIERCE
HERE comes the bride, her heart beating a bit faster, perhaps; but no one would guess if she is perfectly poised and perfectly lovely.
An hour or two ago she was rushing "through the finishing" touches of her beauty regimen. If her purse permitted, she may have called in her favorite hairdresser to adjust her hairstyle (she had a permanent a few weeks ago, and a setting a day or two ago so that her hair would not look too obviously "set" for the wedding march). Or, she may have a friend or a member of the family comb it and carefully coax the little ringlets over fingertips. Most modern brides can do this so skillfully themselves that it does not call for outside help.
Then her make-up was applied very deftly, for she knows how important make-up is to the perfect picture, particularly on a day like this. First, a creamy foundation blended over face, neck, arms, back and shoulders to give a lovely, velvety look to the skin and to conceal any little surface blemishes that have a way of rearing their ugly heads when least invited. Then a cream rouge blended over so carefully, the edges fading away just as Nature's own coloring does. Then careful powdering, first applied with a puff, generously pressed into the skin, the excess smoothed away with a powder brush. Perhaps two shades, one superimposed on the other to give the skin a china-like or cameo quality and merely tone down shine but not look obviously powdered. Lipstick applied very cautiously, enough to lend a little sheen and color; but by no means obvious.
Conservative Make-Up
On this day of days, more than any other, it is well to remember that it is better to err on the conservative side. If Mascara is used, it must be the non-run type and it must be applied with a careful hand. The eyes grow larger (colorless), a bit of oil or cream or plain vaseline are safer. The bride of today knows that it is poor taste for make-up to be harsh or garish or glaring at any time, this day above all. But the bride of today need not blush nor need she be pale.
Her hands are exquisitely soft (the diligent daily use of a hand lotion has done that) and they have only yesterday been manicured, touched off with a pale polish (which is not only better taste for the bride, but a new fashion nowadays as well).
The whole picture, from head to heels is lovely—cleverly planned to glamorize: the coiffure a gorgeous setting for the veil; the gown a flawless, her figure; even the colors and styles of the bridesmaids' gowns and their bouquets planned to flatter them, yes; but bride above all. Her bouquet will soon be thrown away, but we hope the promise to "be beautiful" will linger long . . . for as surely as beauty lives with kindness, happiness lives with BEAUTY. So plan for beauty every day!

Home Environment Plays Role in Training Child

BY DOROTHY DIX
Dear Miss Dix—What part does home environment play in the training of children? This is a subject in which our group of young mothers is much interested and we would like to have your views on this matter.
MRS. E. X.
Answer:
Home environment plays the chief part in forming a child's character. Its importance cannot be overestimated. It is the home that we grow up in, it is the atmosphere that we breathe from infancy, it is the things that we learn at our mothers' knee that makes the pattern of our lives and determines what we will be in the world.
On every side we have testimony as to the influence of their early surroundings on children. Criminologists tell us that almost all of the hoodlum boys and girls come from broken-up homes, or homes in which the parents continually fought and hurled obscene epithets at each other.
Psychiatrists tell us that children who grow up in a happy, cheerful home with parents who love and respect each other rarely have nervous breakdowns, while the heads of the schools which have many pupils who are the children of divorced parents assert that these children are generally neurotic, cynical, bitter, warped in disposition and that they seldom take as much interest in their studies as the children who come from normal homes. And school teachers all say that they can tell in a first interview with a child whether it comes from an educated or an uneducated family.
Our own experience proves to each of us how indelibly is the stamp of our rearing put upon us in our very cradles. No matter how far we go, no matter how we change our environment, no matter how sophisticated we think we have become, underneath it all are the habits we formed in childhood, the ideals we were taught, the tastes we acquired that are still with us and are as much a part of us as our skins and that still motivate us in any great crisis.
We are weak or strong, brave or cowardly, truthful or liars, honest or dishonest, courteous and well-mannered or bores according to how we were brought up.
It is because the home sets the pattern of a child's life that parents owe it to their youngsters to make it as good as they possibly can.
Dear Miss Dix—Can a plain-faced girl become as popular as a pretty one? Does a girl have to smoke, drink, tell smutty jokes, and be wild in order to be popular? When a girl has a date with a boy, what should she talk to him about and how should she act? What kind of girls do boys like? If a girl receives a letter from a boy whom she knows, should she answer it? Should a girl meet a boy halfway in being friendly and be the first to speak when they meet?
A SCHOOLGIRL.
Answer:
Certainly a plain-faced girl can be popular. Some of the most popular girls I know haven't an atom of good looks to bless themselves with, but they have other qualities that attract people to them. They are bright and interesting to talk to. They are good-natured and friendly. They are good dancers and crackerjacks at outdoor sports.
No, a girl doesn't have to be wild in order to have dates. Of course there are boys who won't take a girl out unless she will pet and get drunk with them, but the less you see of these kind of young hoodlums the better off you are. There are plenty of decent boys who prefer girls who are modest, refined and self-respecting, and who won't buy a boy's attendance by debasing themselves.
There is no special type of girls that boys prefer. It is all a matter of taste. Some like quiet girls and some like gay ones. Some like talkers and some are as good at games as they are and others like girls who sit on the sidelines and applaud and tell them how brave and strong and wonderful they are. The main thing is just to be yourself and not to try to copycat any other girl.
If a girl receives a letter from a boy friend, it is only polite to answer it, but she should be careful of what she writes, for boys show girls' letters or they leave them around where their mothers and the chambermaids can read them. The thing that sounded innocent enough when written can make a girl seem ridiculous when read by alien eyes.
Never write sentiment to a boy, no matter how much you are tempted to do so. Emulate a famous flirt who once said that no matter what she might have said to men, there was not a line of her handwriting in the length and breadth of the land.
Be friendly to boys. Show them that you enjoy their society, but don't push over them. It is always good policy to keep a boy guessing.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST
WHEN PEOPLE ACCEPT AND NEVER INVITE
Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I go about with a bridge playing group, which meets only when one of the wives feels like giving a party. One of the wives has never invited us but she continues to accept our invitations. We know that they ask all the others in the group to their house, either together or some at one time and other at another. Shall we continue to ask these people or do you believe they accept our invitations only so as not to offend us, and do you think their leaving us out means "Don't invite us any more"? I would like to have your opinion.
Answer: Since they have always accepted your invitation, it can not be possible that they intend to slight you. But it is at times when you are really the only ones who are always forgotten, it seems to me that it is time to take some stand and wait until they have invited you before again including them.
Dear Mrs. Post: Many times I receive invitations that are not written in the "I" form, but in the "we" form. They are called notes, or simply the time and hour and kind of party is abbreviated on a visiting card. I never know whether the answer should be worded formally or whether a personal note might be written.
Answer: Properly all invitations abbreviated on visiting cards are answered in the third person on note paper. And although to very intimate friends it is at times permissible to send an abbreviated reply, it is safest when in doubt to write the third person note.
Dear Mrs. Post: Is a clergyman always given the place of honor at the right of the hostess, no matter for whom the dinner may actually be given? I mean does his ecclesiastical position give him first honor before any ordinary person?
Answer: Under ordinary circumstances, yes, but if the clergyman is one who goes often to your house, moreover if the clergyman is not very elderly, it would be entirely proper to give a stranger or an elderly gentleman or a man of unusual prominence the seat of honor.

Old Gardener Says:

By E. I. Farrington
The curious Ismene Calthina, sometimes called the Peruvian daffodil, delights all garden makers who grow it, both because of its odd arrangement of flowers and its rich fragrance. The flowers seem to be halfway between the lily and the amaryllis in appearance but are characterized by curiously extended segments, which look like little horns. Care should be taken to plant the bulbs three or four inches deep in a well-drained spot, and it is wise to dig a little peat moss into the ground around them to hold the moisture. They prefer a light, rich soil in an open position and should begin to flower a few weeks after they are planted. If used in groups of six or more they will make a lovely corner in the garden.

The Merchants are favorites to win Sunday's game and if Menasha should upset Oshkosh the pennant race will be hotly contested. Neenah plays Menasha in a double header the following Sunday and a double win over the Eagles would put the Merchants right in the thick of the scramble. Manager Marvin Olson will probably start Orv Schultz, side arm hurler who had an easy time holding Grand Chute scoreless in his first assignment. Bill Handler one of the best catchers in the valley, and who at present is leading the team in batting, will start behind the plate.

Session Begins To Get on Nerves Of Badger Solons

Observers Fear Someone May Get Angry Enough To Upset Program

Madison—The Wisconsin legislature has shown increasing signs of getting on each other's nerves—something that always happens about this stage of the session.

Next week marks the beginning of the sixth month. Tempers have been flaring up, lawmakers have been saying unkind things about each other and shaking fists in each other's faces.

The situation became so noticeable this week that corridor gossip started to conjecture on the possibility of someone getting mad enough to upset careful plans made by the administration for major bills that remain.

With the Wisconsin development authority bill on the verge of enactment, the senate abruptly tossed it over to next week's calendar and gave no assurance it would be acted upon then. Among the senators who voted to lay the bill over were two who supported its enactment, Philip Nelson (R), Maple, and Arthur L. Zimny (D), Milwaukee.

Beverage Division Issue
The senate's temper was greatly disturbed by a row over the bill to place Treasurer Sol Levitan's beverage tax division under civil service by requiring the present employees, including Levitan's many new appointees, to take competitive examinations.

Senator Roland E. Kannenberg (P), Wausau, author of the senate WDA bill, sponsored a substitute that would have given the beverage tax division automatic civil service rating. After much wrangling involving a wide open split among the Progressives, the substitute was killed. Zimny, who controls one of the key votes on the WDA bill, aided Kannenberg in the scrap.

Until this week the two houses have maintained comparatively peaceful relations but a sudden decision to take up the relief question threatened to disturb the atmosphere.

The root of the trouble was the fact that Senator Nelson introduced a bill appropriating $750,000 to meet defaulted relief promises to 28 counties of the north. The figure is $250,000 less than assemblers from the north want to appropriate and they had intended sponsoring the bill.

Offer New Measure
When Speaker Paul Alfonsi, of Pence, and Assemblyman Reno Trego, Merrill, both Progressives, discovered that Nelson had introduced a senate bill, they hurriedly offered a $1,000,000 measure in the house.

Alfonsi panned this bill through the assembly under suspension of the rules over the bitter protest of Finance Chairman E. J. Hoelsy. New Glarus, who appeared to be speaking for the administration.

Alfonsi wanted to take both measures to the finance committee under the senate's supervision and was incensed when the senate referred his bill to the committee on state and local government. This involved a delay because the bill eventually must go to the finance committee anyway.

At least 25 members of the assembly sought relief from the pressure by taking leaves of absence about the middle of the week. The result was that the house quorum was barely large enough to transact business.

Rehabilitation Program Aids County Residents

The cases of 26 physically handicapped persons in Outagamie county were considered by the local unit of the state rehabilitation division of the state board of vocational education from Oct. 1, 1936, to May 1, 1937.

Any physically handicapped person in the county who desires to be included in the program should contact Carl Bertram, coordinator at the vocational school. The local board of vocational education is co-operating with the state department in sponsoring the program.

Rehabilitation directors study the cases of all handicapped persons to discover if they are eligible for the present program. If a person is accepted, he then is assigned to some definite work.

Various handicapped persons received training in the following fields during the 7-month period: agriculture, welding, printing, auto service, machine shop, air conditioning, commerce work, drawing, public speaking, woodwork, maid training, sales and commerce and music. Fifteen persons were placed on jobs during the period while 15 became sufficiently trained to become independent and no longer eligible for the program this year.

See Legislative Action as Result Of Labor Fights

Leaders of Both Parties Condemn Unauthorized Strike

Lansing Mich.—Developments in the labor situation in Michigan this week promised today to produce a response in the legislature.

Republican and Democratic leaders in the senate were alike in condemning the unauthorized strike which tied up power lines in the Saginaw valley. As a result, strong efforts may be made to write into the labor laws rigid provisions covering interference with utility service, which affect great numbers of persons.

If Senators William Palmer, Democratic floor leader, and leading Republican spokesmen have their way, stiff penalties will be provided for participation in an undertaking like that which threw thousands out of work in the Saginaw valley area.

Technically there are laws now which would require mediation in utility labor controversies. An old act permitted the appointment of a mediating body, but none was appointed. Critics of the recent power strike believe the statute should be brought up to date, and that regardless of what action is taken in other directions relative to labor difficulties, binding rules should be enacted regulating services which are vital to the health and welfare of the state.

Bill in Committee
The administration labor relations bill is in the senate labor committee. It is expected it will be reported to the floor next week.

Amendments could be inserted in measure dealing with the situation. Other measures in the legislative bill making unauthorized occupation of the property of employers a felony were introduced early in the session and still are alive. It is too late to submit a new bill bearing directly on the subject, but any number of measures already qualified for legislative consideration could be used as vehicles for amendments.

The legislature next week must clear its calendars. All bills which do not pass the house of origin prior to the end of the week will be dead.

Adjournment of the business session has been set for June 25. Hundreds of measures, of great and little import, apparently will be discarded by the simple method of letting them die in committee.

As the legislature neared the end of its deliberations, it became evident the fiscal puzzle is headed for Governor Murphy's desk. There is every likelihood the legislature will pass appropriation bills for millions of dollars more than the state will have to spend, dump them in the executive's lap and go home.

The first of the expected flood of money bills with which the governor must deal already was on its way to the governor. It appropriated $5,000,000 a year for the highway department, in addition of regular highway funds. As it passed the senate the entire amount would have been lifted from the overburdened general fund. The house amended it so only enough would be taken from the general fund to provide the difference between whatever increase there may be next year in gasoline tax revenues and the full amount.

Schedule Inquest in Fatal Auto Accident
An inquest in the death of William Kelly, 22, route 1, Greenleaf, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident on Highway 41 three miles north of Kaukauna May 31, will be held at the Appleton city hall at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The coroner's jury, selected on the day of Kelly's death, is composed of Edward J. King, Rennie Dean, Oscar Kunitz, Jake Kromer, L. C. Jens and David Jacobson.

Kelly was fatally injured when the car in which he was riding, driven by Norbert Giese, Greenleaf, tipped into a ditch and struck a pole.

driveway by pickets, the flying cable ends striking the three. Joseph Fer, 46, picket, suffered a fractured leg and Nicholas Mordant, 61, bystander, a fractured leg and dislocated shoulder. Another picket was treated at a hospital for bruises and released.

A near disturbance followed as the enraged pickets threatened to enter the strike-bound plant, where food has been dropped from airplanes for non-striking workers. Deputy sheriffs restrained the crowd with a promise to try to take the automobile driver into custody.

Ownership of Wrecked Tanker Being Sought

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.—Attorneys sought today to determine ownership of the oil tanker, J. Oswald Boyd, wrecked on Simmons Reef in the Straits of Mackinac last Nov. 8 with a cargo of 900,000 gallons of gasoline.

Joseph Beatty, and William and Albert McLean of Detroit, Mich., who floated the $200,000 hull and beached it at Detroit June 5, claim ownership. They say underwriters had given the ship up as a total loss.

Insurance companies however were reported to be interested in salvage. Last winter six men lost their lives attempting to salvage the tanker from the wrecked boat, and the Harold H. salvage ship, foundered alongside it.

Hold Democracy Has Reached Crisis Here

Cincinnati—Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin, declared "democracy has reached a crisis in our cities as well as in many European countries" in a commencement address last night to University of Cincinnati graduates.

Dykstra, former city manager of Cincinnati, returned to receive an honorary degree from the university.

"We face the problem of economic reconstruction in a world suffering from unemployment," he said. "The need for reconstruction faces democracy in America as well as in Europe."

"We need a new definition of freedom and a clearer understanding of what is meant by social control. There is no inherent reason why we cannot through a representative system and sound administrative practice meet the challenge thrown down to democratic government and maintain the values for which democracy has stood."

28 Railroads to Pay 5 Million in Wisconsin Taxes

Total Amounts to Increase Of $127,733 Over 1936 Levy

Madison—The state tax commission announced today that tax assessments for 1937 on 28 railroads in Wisconsin total $4,908,155.89, an increase of $127,733.79 over the 1936 assessment.

The commission valued the properties this year at $301,291,000, compared with $214,693,000 in 1936, the higher assessment on a lower valuation in 1937 resulting from an increase of about one mill in the average tax rate. Two small railroads were abandoned and one established in 1936.

Largest taxpayer in the group this year is the Chicago and North Western railway which has been assessed $1,555,733.30 on property valued at $87,000,000. Second is the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad with an assessment of $1,184,214.90 on a property valuation of $131,000,000.

The smallest assessment, $139.32, was levied on the Etrick Railroad company which controls property valued at $6,000.

Telegraph companies—Postal and Western Union—will pay the state $114,238.41 on properties valued at $4,925,000. The companies paid $106,833.60 in 1936 on a total valuation of $4,860,000. The bulk of the 1937 tax will be paid by Western Union which was assessed $102,167.56 on a valuation of $4,000,000.

The Pullman company's tax was fixed at $25,541.88, compared with $22,257 in 1936. Valuation of its properties increased from $1,000,000 in 1936 to $1,100,000.

A tax bill of $11,609.95 went to the Railway Express Agency, Inc. which has holdings in Wisconsin valued at $500,000, compared with $450,000 last year. The agency paid taxes of $10,015.65 in 1936.

Counterfeit Bill Received by Fuller

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh—What may be the forerunner of another flood of counterfeit money in the Fox River valley was the appearance Saturday of a "phony" $10 bill received by Earl E. Fuller, county treasurer. Mr. Fuller said that it had evidently been submitted to his office in the Saturday morning collection of more than $3,000. Oshkosh merchants Saturday afternoon were warned by officials to scrutinize carefully every bill of this denomination presented.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: Attractive Jude Blinshop is mysteriously shot to death on a wild, stormy night at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunts. Everyone marooned on this island is suspect: Mike, who talked with Jude alone that night; the Skipper, his tall and weedy younger cousin; Aunt Martha, stout and proud; Gay Palmer, Mike's read-headed sweetheart; Higgins, the butler; William, the chauffeur; Cook; Annie the maid—even I, who am picked to lead our group investigation. I quiz everyone futilely. As we are about to search the house, some unseen creature slowly shuffles to the door.

Chapter 17
Have Upstairs

THROUGH the door was coming the muffled remains of Christopher, the cat. His lower jaw dangled inches below where it should have been. His fur was matted with blood, and he was dragging himself along painfully on his knly.

"bony, mute, appealing eyes on his mistress's face.

"Like the crack of a rifle came M Farrington's scream:

"Close on that scream came a strangled curse from the Skipper. The revolver was jerked from my hand. There was a sudden flash and a thunderous report, and Christopher lay still.

"What did you do that for?" Mil-

I decided quickly. A lost clue dwindled into nothingness beside that growler.

"You're right, Skipper," I said to Cook's indignant face. "Let's go."

Hilgrins still stood on the landing, but he was huddled into a corner, his head down. His face screwed into a mask of terror.

"How was it?" he demanded hoarsely.

chael's voice was dared

The Skipper placed the gun on the table deliberately.

"He was suffering," she said. "Would she have acted that rapidly if she had been dealing with a person?" Would—

"William," she said, "take it and—"

But I interrupted: "Wait. Just cover it and put it in a closet, if—"

"No!" It was M. Farrington on her feet, hands clenched to her temples, eyes bulking, her voice verging on a scream. "We can't stay here! I won't!"

Before either Gay or I could stop him, Michael was at her savagely, had her by the shoulders and was shaking her like a bag of flour.

The Skipper's voice clapped it before I could "Michael!" she snapped, and he halted. Then after a ghostly pause, "Martha, sit down!"

None of us expected it, but Mr. Farrington sat, and in another moment Michael had himself in hand.

"Sorry, Aunt Martha, he mumbled, "I was just . . ."

"I know how he felt," Gay's voice answered at once. "O K, Jim. Come!" We could hear Michael protesting, but she appeared. "Any luck soldier?" she demanded.

I winked my head. "You watch the upper 'half and Higgins the lower one! That makes it all right, doesn't it, Higgins?"

"Yes sir," rather chamferedly, "I was just . . ."

"All right in the living room," I said. "There was no light in M. Farrington's room and I concluded that at least one person had been where the closed door had been during my wild performance downstairs."

"The girl said she didn't know," I said. "There was a creak and the room was flooded with light. I

Probably showers beginning tonight or Sunday, slightly warmer south portion tonight.

General Weather
A low pressure area which is now central over western Nebraska has caused showers over the northern Rocky mountains and northern and central plains states, and it is cloudy and unsettled this morning over the central states and Lake region. However, fair weather is general over the southern Rocky mountains and over all the eastern states.

Temperatures are now rising over the plains states, central Mississippi valley and the Lake region, but elsewhere the temperature changes have not been important.

Showers are expected in this section during the next 24 hours, with little change in temperature.

Badgers Still Not Sure of Position On Wage-Hour Bill

Don't now How Far They Want to Go on Specific Provisions

Washington—(AP)—The administration's wages and hours legislation gave Wisconsin's congressional delegation something more to think about this week.

Generally, the members are in accord with the objectives of the bill—elimination of child labor, minimum wages and maximum hours for industry in interstate commerce—but have not decided just how far they want to follow its specific provisions.

Senator F. Ryan Duffy said there is some sentiment in the senate for clipping the proposed powers to be vested in the labor standards commission, which would be created under the bill. There is a feeling, he said, that the commission under the original draft of the bill would have too wide discretionary powers.

Then too, he added, indications are that a lower "ceiling" under which the board could step in where collective bargaining has failed to obtain a fair wage, would be written into the bill.

At present, the commission or board could act in such cases where annual salaries did not exceed $1,200. There is some disposition, said Duffy, to limit the commission's jurisdiction to cases involving salaries not exceeding approximately $800 annually.

Seasonal employment is another point on which there is disagreement. Whether industries employing seasonal labor should be exempt is a moot point.

Minnesota canners, through the Minnesota Canners' associations, have taken a position on the question, but so far none of the Wisconsin congressmen has heard from representatives of the industry in their state.

The Progressive group has not yet decided what attitude it will take on the various phases of the bill except to announce support for the principle of minimum wages and maximum hours together with abolition of child labor. The bloc probably will meet next week to hear Representative George Schneider, Appleton, member of the house labor committee, discuss committee testimony and may decide what prospective amendments they feel will be needed.

No Early Adjournment
Hot weather provoked increased speculation among Wisconsin's delegation about when congress would adjourn. The majority forecast it would be sometime in September.

T. K. Bakken, secretary of the Wisconsin State Land commission, stayed over a few days this week after other commission members left following a conference with Progressives about how the state might get $1,631,000 for swamp lands included in three Indian reservations in Wisconsin. The lands originally were given the state under the swamp land act.

Bakken talked with interior department officials about getting surveys of several hundred acres of land and 55 islands in the Mississippi river, which never have been surveyed. The acreage is in Oconto and Marinette counties. Bakken said a survey of the areas involved might enable the state to claim title to the lands.

Little Chute Points for Win Over Oshkosh Tomorrow

Kaukauna Plays At Two Rivers; Kimberly Is Idle

Manager Vanderloop of Hollanders Undecided On Outfield

LITTLE CHUTE—With Kimberly idle and Kaukauna playing at Two Rivers, Little Chute will be the mecca for baseball fans in this section of the Northern State League tomorrow. The Chutes will clash with Oshkosh at 2:30. Originally the game was scheduled at Oshkosh but has been changed because another team is using the Oshkosh park.

Pushed out of first place in the standings last week by Manitowoc, the Chutes aim to get back in victory tomorrow. However, they appreciate the Indians will be tough for they haven't been doing half bad this season. Among their victims they number Kaukauna and Manitowoc, both of whom have defeated the Chutes.

Dick Weisgerber will pitch for the Chutes with Kosloski toiling for the invaders. Andy Kuenzel, the Indians' other hurler, won't be ready for duty for probably another week. Bob Fowler, an infielder, hurt on Memorial day, also is expected to rejoin the squad Sunday while Orville Hawk, a third sacker, and formerly with New London, will make his debut.

Little Chute's infield will show Jack Lamers, catcher, Peotter, first, Ellis, second, Bongers, short and Verstegen, third. The outfield, however, will be a tossup for Manager Vanderloop is bothered by failure of his gardeners to hit. Kaukauna will make its first appearance of the season at Two Rivers. The Electric City outfit is clicking on "all nine" these days and the Icebergs will have to be on their toes to keep the bacon at home. It will be either Petka or Carvenough for the Bays with Peck receiving while Bohne and Puppeter have been named to work for the Cool city aggregation. The Manitowoc Shipbuilders will be the attraction at Green Bay. The Borths - Kallies combination looms as a pennant contender as the veterans and recruits have been moulded into a winning ball club. Lefty Schoepke and Tommy Gray will carry on for the Ships while Manager McClain of the Bays will probably pitch. Bill Van Boxel, a side-arm slabster who has shown lots of class.

The Kimberly Papermakers have the idle date this week.

GRAPHIC GOLE

TRY THESE EXERCISES TO GET THE MOST OUT OF YOUR GOLF SWING.

BY BEST BALL BACKSTROKE EXERCISES

In order to gain a clear conception of the backstroke and get the feel of the different positions, the above exercises should prove of considerable help. This is particularly of aid if one's physique is so heavy that a fundamental backswing is difficult if not impossible. In such a case gradual repetition of the above exercise may tend to make the body more supple and make accomplishment of the proper backswing possible. It is also an aid in developing in the novice a physical acquaintance with the proper backstroke positions at, and between, the two points illustrated here.

For example, the golfer assumes his address in front of the ball, grounds his club and after securing the proper grip raises it upright in front of his body. From this position the hips are turned, much in the fashion of the real swing, to the right, weight shifted to the right foot, and the left arm pushing to the left with the motion.

From this point on the stroke is similar to the real swing, the left arm maintaining its extension and the right arm helping in lifting it upward. Thus, in the position at the top, one is in a true swinging position.

Carroll College Will Lose 16 Sports Stars

Waukesha—The Carroll college athletic teams will lose 16 lettermen by graduation this year when commencement exercises are held June 14.

Leading the group of athletes is Jerry Barnes, Chicago, who will be the first athlete in the school to be graduated with nine letters. He competed in football, basketball, and track.

The football team will lose six others in addition to Barnes. They are: Ralph Kuechel, Wausau; Oswald Johnson, Black River Falls; Frank Turner, Chilton; Don Knutson, Tazewell; Don Corps, Stevens Point; and Bob Billings, Cambridge.

Harry O'Malley, Waukesha; Don Swarting, Brookings S. D.; and Harold Ziegler, Tomah, will be lost to the basketball squad.

Marion to Play at Embarrass Tomorrow

Embarrass—On Sunday, Marion will play at Clintonville and Bear Creek will go to Maple Valley. Although the latter team has lost all its games this season, it gave Marion a good battle last Sunday in a ten-inning game. Embarrass will be host to Marion and a good game is expected as Embarrass is at the top of the ladder with Marion one game behind.

Frank Walsh Still Among Leaders At National Open Golf Tourney

BY FRITZ HOWELL
IRMINGHAM, Mich., (AP)—Goldfom hoped to crown the new American open champion today, with a burst of par-cracking fireworks, but so many hairs apparent were on hand that there was a good chance the coronation would be delayed until Sunday.

Sixty-five of the nation's sharpshooters teed off for the 36-hole stretch which completes the regulation 72-hole test, starting at 7:15 a. m. (CST) over the bunkered battle ground of Oakland Hills.

They survived the two-day scoring spree that eliminated 101 of the original starters and developed one of the closest contests in the 41-year history of the tournament. Ten par-breakers were grounded in a wide open scramble for the laurels won a year ago at Baltusrol by Tony Manero.

Leading the chase for Manero's crown, along with a crack at Tony's record 282 total, were a quartet of professional siege guns, comprising Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., big Ed Dudley of Philadelphia, and Frank Walsh and Ralph Guldahl of Chicago, all with subpar totals of 140 at the half way mark. (Editor's note: Walsh was the first pro at Butte des Morts Golf club.)

As a prelude to the final barrage, Thomson yesterday fired a 66 that beat par by six shots, clipped three strokes off the Oakland Hills competitive record, and equalled the all-time low for a single round in the open championship. Guldahl, on his way to a second round 69, shot the outgoing half in 32 for another record performance.

Two strokes off the pace, at 142, were Frankie Strafan, the 21-year-old public links star from Brooklyn, Pat Sawyer, Minneapolis pro, and the pre-tournament choices, Harry Cooper of Chicago and Slammin' Sam Snead, the West Virginian who burned up the winter circuit.

Cooper and Snead remained "hot" in the betting books, with "Light" Harry riding hard in the quest for a title that has been just escaping his grasp for a decade. Also under par, with 143, were Johnny Goodman, the Omaha amateur who won the open in 1933, and Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J. who provided one of the "picture shots" yesterday by sinking a 60-foot putt with a mud-covered ball on the 15th, or "lake hole".

This closely bunched "top ten" forecast the possibility of the first playoff since 1931, when Billie Burke beat George Von Elm in a marathon duel lasting two days. In case of a deadlock at the end of today's play, an 18-hole playoff will be staged Sunday.

Thomson, second in the 1935 open with 301, and tied for 14th last year, became the fifth player to post a 66 in tournament history after missing two short putts, near the close, that would have put him in a class by himself. Only Gene Sarazen, Johnny Goodman, Walter Hagen and Tommy Creavy touched the mark previously.

Wisconsin's two representatives played consistent golf in their first two rounds, but it wasn't good enough to put them up with the leaders.

Alvin Krueger, Beloit professional, added a 77 to his first round of 66 for a total of 143. Burns O. "Blackie" Nelthorpe, professional at the Westmor club, Milwaukee, matched his opening round 62 yesterday and had a total of 164.

Johnny Revolta, formerly of Oshkosh, Marinette and Milwaukee, "W's" was eight strokes behind the leaders. He turned in a 73 yesterday, two strokes under his first round score, and went into the third round with a total of 148.

Garden Planning to Start New Law Suit

Chicago—The Madison Square Garden corporation's intention of suing every one involved, world heavyweight champion James J. Braddock and challenger Joe Louis, planned heavy training maneuvers today for their 15-round battle at Comiskey park, June 22.

Col. John Reed Kipatnick, the Garden's president, said yesterday that his organization would file damage suits against everyone who had a hand in causing "Braddock to disregard his contract, to meet Max Schmeling" and announced that a motion for a re-hearing on the Garden's injunction suit to prevent the Chicago fight, already has been asked.

Promoter Joe Foley said the Garden's latest maneuver in its legal battle, in which it lost the first two rounds, would make no difference as far as the Braddock-Louis bout is concerned, that "it would go on, just as planned."

Associated Press Sports Writer
JOHNNY Whitehead is unique for being about the only regular on the Chicago White Sox, who has never pitched a night, no-run game. He's also unique as one of the two undefeated American league pitchers of the year, one of the champion dinner-bell-answers in either league—and, right now, as "the man who came back."

Two years ago, when Johnny came to the big time from Texas, he was regarded as an outstanding fling prospect. He started off well enough, but finally wound up with a .500 average, 13 wins and the same loss. Last year, the same thing happened, and Manager Jimmy Dykes decided he'd had enough of Mr. Whitehead.

He peddled Johnny at the doorstep of every other club in the loop. "Whitehead," he told his rival managers, "is one of the standouts in the league, if not in baseball, but there's something wrong. Maybe a change of uniform will do the trick. I'm here to trade him."

But the others wouldn't touch the fat boy with a ten-foot pole. Came the start of this season, and Whitehead was not in condition to pitch. Dykes had to suspend him without pay. That did it. Next to going without meals, losing his pay apparently was the hardest thing that could hit Johnny. He really went to work and reported himself ready after 14 days.

Won First Start
In Boston, he made his 36 starting debut and whipped the Red Sox in ten innings. Less than a week later, he let the Indians down with one run, and then blanked the A's. Yesterday, Johnny made his fourth start of the year, and for the fourth time he went the full nine innings as he stopped the Washington Senators 14-8. The victory was the eleventh for the Sox in their last 12 games and boosted them back into second place in the American league.

Although Whitehead was hit hard, it was nothing compared to the 17 hit barrage the White Sox exploded, with Zeke Bonura connecting for a homer, two doubles and a single and driving in five runs.

The win kept the Sox just a game off the American league pace as set by the Yankees, who clubbed out 17 hits to blank the helpless St. Louis Browns 10-0, behind Charley The Red Ruffins' five-hit thrashing. Joe Dimaggio continued his recent slugging with two homers.

Buck Ross gave the Athletics their first better-than-pitching in several days, and the A's trounced the Cleveland Indians 11-3. The Tigers uncovered their new rookie pitcher, Bootsie Foffenberg, and topped the Red Sox 4-1. The entire National league program was called off.

LUCKY TETER SPILLS ANOTHER CAR

Here's a scene that will be repeated Sunday at the Oshkosh fair grounds when Lucky Teter and his Hell Drivers stage another performance. The picture shows Teter in one of his favorite stunts of rolling a car down the straightaway in front of the grandstand.

Nothing Reckless About Lucky Teter and Troupe

WHAT makes a daredevil that way? Is it the money, the insatiable thirst for publicity, the thrill of doing something that no one else has done—or could do, or is it because his gray matter has failed to develop sufficiently for him to comprehend the bodily danger he exposes himself to when he crashes a burning ball with an automobile, forces his gasoline steed to leap a truck, or turns an automobile over and over while traveling at a great rate of speed? Lucky Teter, internationally famous stunt driver and termed by Grantland Rice as the "mercurial man in the world," denies that any of the above reasons were predominant factors in causing him to take up professional throttle-jamming for a means of livelihood. He maintains that it was the drab and uninteresting cause which our barristers would term "an uninterrupted chain of events."

Lucky, who will bring his troupe of world's famous stunt men, known as Hell Drivers, to the Oshkosh fairgrounds Sunday, was an employee of an oil company just a few years ago. He helped them conduct a test run to gather data on motor oil. He became interested, and he soon was a test pilot for an automobile manufacturer. The manufacturer wouldn't allow him to put the cars through the grueling tests that Lucky wanted to try because, in the manufacturer's own words "we are testing the quality of automobiles, not how much punishment a human body is able to endure." So when Lucky was offered a sizeable sum for turning an automobile side over side and end over end at a county fair in Ohio, he accepted and was the first man in the world to successfully complete the operation—on purpose.

Becomes Sensation

Needless to say, county fairs crowded through the gates to see this new and thrilling feat. Spectators, the faintest women screamed, and the show became a sensation over night. From the nucleus of this one stunt Lucky, little by little, built the spectacular show up to its present large proportions.

When asked how he chose the two-score stunt men that he now has with him, Teter replied, "There are a lot of reckless drivers everywhere. I don't want them. A stunt driver is the most careful driver to be found. He must have the ability at all times to bring an automobile back under control once he loses it. The difference between a stunt driver and an ordinary reckless driver is that the stunt man thinks ahead, reacts to stimuli a little bit quicker and knows what he is going to do. A reckless driver merely takes chances and when he gets in a tight place he tries to slam bang his way through. Needless to say, he usually makes his last trip to the hospital."

Dave Woodward, Packer Trainer, Tells What It Takes to be an All-American

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of articles by Dave Woodward, trainer for the Green Bay Packers, on how to get in condition for football.)

WHAT does it take to become an All-American? Mr. second All-American, Herbert Joesting, fullback, was selected an all-American fullback two successive years.

Herb, as he was called by his team mates, was a member of the famed "thundering herd" of the University of Minnesota.

To say the least, that team was well named, and Herb was the battering ram that gave the great Minnesota team its name. Coached by Dr. Clarence Spears, who in my opinion is one of the greatest coaches in the country today, especially in his line play both offensively and defensively, Herb really fit right into the picture. He was a great line plunger, a vicious blocker, and a fair forward passer.

Speaking of Joesting's blocking, I recall a 150-pound fullback whose name was Harold (Shorty) Almquist. Shorty gave Joesting nearly all the credit for his ground gaining. Shorty claimed that he would follow Herb until Herb would throw a block, and when Shorty would hear and really feel the thud of the Joesting body striking an opponent, he would cut and go places. He claims the man that Herb blocked always was acting as a spectator with his body well laid out on the gridiron.

Stories were making the rounds at one time, when Joesting was required to make a series of two or three transfers after every scrimmage or game. However, that was true. Herb played hard and received a great many injuries, but he never was a training table athlete. I guess where the stories originated was due to the fact that if the team needed a yard or two Herb would do a swan dive over the line, making the necessary yardage but always coming up with a skinned nose. I believe he landed on his nose more than any football player I have ever known.

Made Team Again

During Joesting's senior year in college, the second year he was named all-American fullback he received a number of injuries and was always seemed like a miracle to me how he was able to play every game. These injuries, started on the second game and were as follows: ankle sprain, internal lateral ligament torn in the knee, a bruise at the crest of the thigh bone hip and a chronic clavicular sprain in the shoulder.

As he received each injury he would give treatments. X-rays, physio-therapy, massage, special protective taping and caution during the week between games. We all worried plenty about Herb, but nevertheless he was right on the job every Saturday and I mean a 60-minute man, showing he had the right frame of mind, plenty of courage and fight, speed, and just what it takes for any of us to get anywhere in this world.

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York—(AP)—With steel strikes spreading, only a slight push was necessary today to start stock market leaders on another slide.

Signs of peace in the steel labor field were lacking and the latest walkout called at Bethlehem's important Cambria plant accentuated Wall street's gloom.

While union disputes at the Michigan factories of Budd Wheel and Packard Motors were settled, little cheer was added from this development owing to threats of settlement in other parts of the country.

Early losses of fractions to more than two points among steels, motors, coppers and rails were reduced in some instances before the close. There was a large assortment of new lows for the year.

The pace was slow throughout, transfers approximating 350,000 shares.

Bonds were uneven and most commodities pointed lower.

Bottom marks for 1937 were hit by General Motors, Chrysler, Vanadium, Motor Products, Boeing, Consolidated Electric, Electric Power and Light, Public Service of N. J., and American Can among others.

Conspicuous losers were Bethlehem, Inland Steel, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Anacostia, Kennecott, American Smelting, Westinghouse, General Electric, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Celanese, Loew's, Lone Star Cement, Yale and Towne, Newport Industries and Air Reduction.

Budd Wheel and Packard were about even, along with Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Continental Oil, and North American and Socony-Vacuum.

Little Activity Marks Transactions on Curb

New York—(AP)—The curb market drifted today with little trading in evidence. Aluminum Co. dropped again 2 points and Montgomery Ward "A" slid lower by 11.

Most of the list showed an inclination to buckle with Lake Shore Mines, International Petroleum, St. Regis Paper, Panpipe Oil and American Gas and Electric among the losers.

Up slightly were Electric Bond and Share, Gulf Oil and American Cyanamid "B."

Bieritz Displays Fine Instruments In Downtown Store

Indiana and Martin Lines
Being Shown in La
Villa Windows

A special display of Martin and Indiana line of band instruments is being shown in the windows of the La Villa Restaurant, located at 130 E. College avenue, by the Bieritz Musical Instrument Repair Ser-

vite, authorized dealers of these two well-known makes of band instruments. The Martin and Indiana handcraft band instruments, recognized throughout the country as being of superior quality, are the only lines built by hand. This method, according to the Bieritz firm, is recognized by most musicians as producing the most perfect instruments in construction. The Indiana line, built by Martin, however, superior to most other types in its price class because it, too, is built by hand. According to Louis Henderson, featured trumpet player in Wayne King's popular orchestra, "the Martin has everything worthwhile in quality band instruments." ## Peace of Mind Is Result of Proper Auto Insurance

Employers Mutuals Offers Full Protection and Cash Savings

"The one way," says Employers Mutuals of Wausau, "to enjoy complete peace of mind—before or after the accident happens in spite of all precautions—is to carry the right kind of automobile insurance. There is also one way to recover that part of the cost of automobile insurance which is a reflection of accidents caused by the carelessness of irresponsible drivers. That way is to place your automobile insurance in a strong mutual company that takes only selected risks. This guarantees to policyholders that are accepted an association with other desirable risks and a share in the profits from resultant higher earnings."

Why, you ask, Employers Mutuals? "Because," says the company, "the primary purpose of an Employers Mutual automobile policy is protection—protection for the insured's accumulated assets and future happiness against claims for damages arising from automobile accidents causing bodily injuries to others or damage to the property of others, and protection against loss through damage to the insured's automobile."

"Because," the matter of service facilities is of great importance. Through trained, direct company representatives operating from completely equipped branch offices, the interests of policyholders are given prompt, courteous and accurate attention. Approved attorneys are available for service throughout the country. Service is nation-wide.

"Because," by dealing through direct representatives, through careful selection of business, and through accident prevention activities, thereby reducing both loss and expense ratios below average, it has been possible during the entire life of the company to effect substantial savings for policyholders in the form of dividend returns.

"Because," the company is of unquestionable financial standing. Maintaining fully adequate reserve receives the highest rating from recognized authorities, and issues a strictly non-assessable automobile policy."

The complete Appleton branch office of Employers Mutuals—writing a full line of automobile, compensation, fire and other types of insurance—is located on the third floor of the Insurance building in charge of R. J. White. The telephone number is 3264 and all inquiries are answered without obligation.

Company Back of Trailer Must be Well Experienced

Valley Trailer Sales Points To Long History of Hayes Company

The company behind the product is of utmost importance to consider when you are about to invest in a trailer, plus the experience and background of the manufacturer. The Hayes Body Corporation is one of America's oldest builders of fine automobile bodies. Each year thousands of Hayes-built bodies are delivered to eager buyers. The experience thus gained is an industry where close attention to detail is law has proven invaluable to Hayes in producing trailers.

The Hayes trailer is more than a box on wheels. It is modeled and moulded in steel to conform with the modern mode of streamlined transportation. Fine car construction experience, scientific design and engineering, and expert cabinet craftsmanship, such as found only in Grand Rapids are just a few of the many plus features to be found in a Hayes Trailer, says Mr. Wort of the Valley Trailer Sales, local distributors of the Hayes Trailers located at 210 N. Appleton street.

Many of the 450 makes of trailers on the market today are the product of companies who have had no experience what so ever in building any kind of a vehicle for use on the roads, and even if they had and still stuck to the flimsy wood construction our conclusion should be that those manufacturers were still back in the horse and buggy days where today's speeds were never dreamed of. Hayes has progressed through the years and has pioneered Safety-Steel in the automobile going from wood to wood and steel and finally to Safety-Steel.

Hayes engineers realized when they designed their first trailer that the trailer is subject to practically the same driving conditions as the car that draws it. Hayes has gone all the way with steel. The chassis, body frame, roof and the exterior encased in Safety-Steel electric welded into one single unit from wheels to top. There is not a nail, a screw or bolt used in any structural part of a Hayes.

The interiors have been carefully planned and completed showing the extreme care the cabinet craftsmen have exercised in the finished product. These fine coaches must be seen to be appreciated. Hayes are built to a quality and that quality is never sacrificed to price, although these fine Safety-Steel trailers cost very little more than advertised popular priced trailers. Hayes models are on display at the show room of the Valley Trailer Sales, 210 N. Appleton street, and are open for your inspection daily 8:30 a. m. until 9 p. m., Sunday from 1 to 5 p. m.

Mr. Wort extends a cordial invitation to you to inspect these models and offer your criticisms of the WORLD'S ONLY SAFETY-STEEL TRAILERS, the fit companion for your Safety-Steel car.

500-Mile Race Proves Stamina Built Into Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires

"HAVE TODAY WON THE SILVER CUP" ANNOUNCED THE 500-MILE INDIANAPOLIS RACE ON FIRESTONE GUM-DIPPED TIRES. AT 113.58 MILES PER HOUR BREAKING ALL RECORDS STOP IN KNEW I COULD WIN IF MY TIRES COULD STAND THE TERRIFIC HEAT GENERATED AT THESE NEW HIGH SPEEDS STOP WORDS CANNOT EXPRESS MY GRATEFUL APPRECIATION FOR THE MARVELOUS STRENGTH BUILT INTO YOUR TIRES AND THEIR OUTSTANDING PERFORMANCE.

"WILBUR SHAW" In this telegram to Harvey S. Firestone he contained one of the most significant stories to come out of the tire industry this year—a year when more and more attention is being paid toward lessening the dangers of motor car driving on the highways by severe tests in the laboratories and on the proving grounds.

"Thousands," to quote the Firestone company, "said that tires could not stand the terrific grind. They said cars had been built with much greater speed, turns in the track had been repaved with granite-like surfaces. Yet Wilbur Shaw drove to victory on Firestone Gum-Dipped tires setting a new record of 113.58 miles per hour on one of the hottest days in the history of the Indianapolis track."

"Speeds of 130, 140 and even 150 were attained on the straightaways," points out the Firestone statement. "Think of the terrific impact on these tires as the cars roared into the treacherous turns and out again. Tons of force, straining, pulling and twisting inside the tire, yet not one cord loosened, not one tread separated from the cord body—all because Gum-Dipping, the patented Firestone process, successfully counteracted the internal friction and heat that ordinarily destroy tire life."

In pointing out that every winning car for the past 18 years has ridden to victory on Firestones, and that every one of the 33 drivers this year chose and bought Firestones, the company explains that while the average motorist will never drive his car at these record-breaking speeds, he still needs the safety of Firestone gum-dipping and the two extra layers of gum-dipped cords under the tread for the safety of his family and himself.

Motorists in the Appleton area have been invited to join the Firestone "Save a Life Campaign" by equipping their cars with new Firestone gum-dipped tires, termed by race drivers as "the safest tires money can buy."

The Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store is located at 700 W. College avenue.

Mason's Judgment Essential When Designing Home

Customers for 30 Years Have Confidence in Robert Schultz

Perhaps you are proud of your home because of the excellent work which your contractor, painter, masonry and concrete contractor did to make your home attractive. If you are satisfied in this regard and are proud to have your friends look over your home, you are fortunate and are entitled to compliment yourself for having made a wise choice in the selection of contractors to perform your job. There are some homeowners, however, who, after examining the results of their building work, wish that they had been more careful and used better judgment in their selection of contractors for many phases of their building. Inexperienced and incompetent men, perhaps, were engaged by these people to do their work simply because the cost was lower than some more experienced man could offer and the result was a poor job and a dissatisfied new home owner.

If you are interested in making changes or improvement on your property or are planning on the building of a new home, you will realize the necessity of using good judgment in the selection of the masonry or concrete contractor employed to do that part of the building. Especially, is this true if you have seen examples of poor types of work which have been performed by inexperienced workmen. People acquainted with the work of Robert A. Schultz, 1228 W. Lawrence street, Masonry and Concrete Contractor, with some 30 years of experience in Appleton, have no fears in this regard when he is on the job.

Numerous good examples may be seen throughout the city of the work performed by Mr. Schultz, which immediately eliminates any questioning of the quality of his work. He is that type of reliable and experienced contractor who is not influenced by cheap and competitive bids. It is always the case of the best work and the best materials at reasonable price when Robert A. Schultz takes over the job. Estimates of work are given freely and without obligation. ## Only Crack Shot Can Get This Job

$15,000 a Day in Tolls Collected From Giant Bridge

Oakland, Calif.—(AP)—A small fortress, into which one-way trucks pour some $15,000 a day, protects receipts of the giant San Francisco Oakland Bay bridge.

So far the toll gate has not attracted holdup men, and Captain M. L. Silvey, in charge of collectors, expects no trouble in the future—not if the crooks "scout" the situation first.

Every one of the 40 or 50 men normally on duty is armed," he explained. "We have our own target range and a man who can't shoot can't work here."

"Each collector gets only $200 for chance—not a big haul. When he finishes his shift he sacks his money and it goes through a one-way door to the counting room."

"That room is lined with triple armor and it would take a cannon to pierce it. The windows are bullet-proof glass nearly two inches thick. They have small port-holes, so we can shoot out without being fired on."

amateur contest, playing in Unit 1 of the Mayor Bowles tour, also endorse the Martin line, using this line of instruments exclusively.

The Martin firm has recently placed on the market the new Steve Broadus saxophone, the only instrument in its price class guaranteed to be in tune. Already this new instrument is being heralded as a remarkable achievement in instrument building. The Bieritz firm offers the sale of any of these two lines of instruments under easy payment plans with liberal trade-in allowance for old instruments. Good bargains in used instruments are also available.

The feature service of the Bieritz Musical Instrument company is its factory method, low cost, guaranteed repair service. Factory methods in reconditioning and repairing of musical instruments is employed with its special factory equipment making this possible.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

had met his fate. He had been savagely bashed against the mahogany. Great wet splashes of blood went in a wavering line toward the door where he had evidently dragged himself.

I leapt to the closet door and flung it open. Clothes, nothing else. Through the connecting door of the bathroom came the Skipper's voice. "Nothing here, either."

Simultaneously Annie's shrill sob broke forth reinforced by a deep, rumbling prayer to all the saints from Cook.

I shouted something and started to herd them ahead of me out of the room. "Skipper! Are you there? Are you?"

The Skipper turned from an inspection of her closet, her face drawn and set.

"Empty! What can we do?" I dragged her into the hall after the others. Annie and Cook were pretty far gone. Higgins crouched with his back to the wall and his revolver waving frantically before him. As we emerged through that ghastly door, William, his face like chalk, dashed wildly past them and up the stairs.

shoulder. But for once there was no response. The Skipper was leaning against the wall, her eyes closed and her hands clenched at her sides. As I spoke, she swayed and William caught her as she fell.
